SEPT. 5 MEETING IN U.S.

Sadat, Begin, Carter Set Peace Summit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at Camp David, Md., Sept. 5 to resume direct Middle East peace negotiations.

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced that the three leaders will meet "to seek a framework for peace in the Middle East."

Powell said all are agreed that there is "no task more important than the search for a permanent settlement."

The meeting is the first major breakthough in Mideast peace efforts since Sadat suspended negotiations last January. It will be the first meeting between Sadat and Begin since last December.

The meeting was arranged by U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance, who went to the Mideast during the weekend to try to resume negotiations at the foreign minister level. Vance now is in Alexandria, Egypt

The peace efforts had broken down over an Egyptian demand for an Israeli commitment to surrender sovereignty over the West Bank of the River Jordan and the Gaza Strip.

The Israeli position has been that it would discuss the sovereignty question after a five-year period of limited self-rule by Palestinian Arabs in the area.

A White House official told reporters that the summit meeting is not expected to produce a settlement but only to narrow differences between Sadat and Begin.

The official said Carter decided to ask for it because Egypt and Israel were drifting away from a peaceful settlement and Carter wanted to restore lost momentum in the peace negotiations.

He said Carter hopes the summit "will encourage the parties to resume more direct negotiations themselves."

The breakthrough came after one of the gloomiest periods in the protracted U.S. effort to get the two combatants back to the bargaining table.

Only last week, Sadat denounced Israel for injecting what he said were new negative elements. And the Egyptian president said he did not favor a return to direct talks.

U.S. DOLLAR LOSES AGAIN

LONDON (AP) — Lack of confidence continued to erode the value of the United States dollar today, and gold prices moved close to the record high set last week.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 187.375 yen.

London's five major bullion dealers fixed the morning price of gold at $206.75 U.S. an ounce, up from Monday's closing price of $203.65.

Fractional Decline In Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate declined slightly in July for the first time in four months, but remained stubbornly higher than July a year ago.

In B.C. an influx of students seeking summer jobs boosted the province's July unemployment rate marginally over last month.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said the province's actual unemployment rate rose to 7.6 per cent of the labor force compared with 7.2 per cent in June. A year ago, the B.C. unemployment rate was 8.5 per cent.

However, in B.C. the number of seasonally-adjusted employed fell slightly to 7.7 per cent in July from 7.8 per cent in June.

With 927,000 unemployed nationally, Statistics Canada said today that on a seasonally-adjusted basis, 8.4 per cent of the Canadian work force was without jobs. That was down fron 8.6 per cent in the four preceding months.

The seasonally-adjusted rate measures trends in unemployment.

The actual number of unemployed was up from 903,000 in June. The actual unemployment rate of eight per cent was the same as for June.

A Blazing Warm Welcome For Philip

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria laid on a warm welcome — a blazing 29 degrees Celsius and at least as high on the hospitality scale — for the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Andrew when they visited the city Monday to crown the summer-long Captain Cook festivities.

It was the sort of day when anyone in shorts and T-shirt would have felt overdressed, and those involved in official ceremonies were clearly uncomfortable in their suits, formal dresses and uniforms.

But all concerned, from Premier Bennett down to nine-year-old Casey Leggatt, of Santa Barbara, California, seemed to be having a good time despite the heat.

Casey and a young friend were in a throng of about 7,000 jammed on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings and the waterfront when Prince Philip stopped for a brief chat before he headed for lunch in the wardroom at CFB Esquimalt.

What were they discussing?

"We talked about skateboards," said Casey. "He asked me if I wore all the equipment and I showed him my kneepads."

It was characteristic of the human touch which has tended to replace stodgy formality on recent royal tours, and there were scores of such conversations and handshakes — by both father and son — throughout a taxing public program of more than six hours, most of it under a fierce sun.

The program itself ran with military efficiency, although the unpredictability of the Queen's consort kept plainclothes security men hopping in a state of mild apprehension.

His preference for the do-it-yourself approach was evident earlier in the day.

According to officials he took over the controls of the RAF Andover aircraft of the Queen's Flight on takeoff from Edmonton, and landed it at Victoria International Airport.

And Prince Philip also made his official driver redundant for much of the busy Victoria schedule, by driving the yellow rent-a-Rolls convertible himself on three separate trips.

Only about 100 spectators were on hand to watch the 11.30 a.m. touchdown, and other small groups of

B.C. DAY, THE HOTTEST THIS YEAR

The B.C. Day holiday was a real scorcher in Victoria as the temperature climbed to a sizzling 29.3 degrees recorded at Gonzales Hill — the highest this year.

Monday's temperature tied the record for Aug. 7 set in 1941, but doesn't come close to the all-time high of 36 recorded in July, 1941, according to Environment Canada's Victoria weather bureau.

Victoria residents can expect continued highs of between 27 and 30 for most of this week as a ridge of high pressure deflects storm conditions to northern B.C.

Chan 11 May Go To CBC

Victoria television viewers will lose Channel 11 programs in November if an agreement between Cablevision Victoria Ltd. and local CBC officials is confirmed by Ottawa.

Vancouver viewers will lose either Channel 4 or Channel 5.

The lost channels can be picked up on mid-band if a converter is purchased.

The shuffle is to make room for the Victoria CBC station which comes on the air in November.

Canadian stations are given top priority.

The CBC wanted 4, 5 or 7 but Cablevision Victoria proposed moving its public announcements to Channel 11 and freeing Channel 10 for the Victoria CBC outlet.

Cablevision general manager Len Charlish said this proposal has been accepted on a one-year trial basis by local CBC officials but will also have to be approved by federal regulatory authorities before it can proceed.

Charlish said the CBC has reserved the right to move to some other channel if ghosting develops on its Channel 10 station during the one-year test period.

"They will be interested in 4, 5 or 7 if they don't stay on Channel 10."

In Vancouver the Victoria station will be seen on Channel 4 or Channel 5. For the first year, programs will be identical on Channel 2 and the Victoria CBC channel.

In all, there are 12 cablevision channels plus the potential of another 12 channels on mid-band by purchasing a converter.

Cart Pull In Heat Kills Dogs

PENTICTON (CP) — The death of two husky dogs marred this Okanagan city's Peach Festival last weekend.

The two dogs from Penticton's sister city of Yellowknife - Monkey and Hitler - died from heat prostration after pulling a summer training cart through the festival's parade in 35-degree heat.

"Heat prostration is not a pretty thing," said Randy Manuel, spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "They really suffered."

Manuel said the animals were left for an hour and a half in a hot asphalt area before the parade. Their owner forced them to continue the 2.4 kilometre-march after they collapsed one third of the way to the finish, he said.

CHRISTINA EYES DIVORCE?

ATHENS (Reuter) — Greek newspapers reported today that Christina Onassis plans to divorce the Soviet husband she married seven days ago. But her aunt promptly denied the reports, which had no firm source.

The millionaire daughter of the late Greek business tycoon Aristotle Onassis arrived here unexpectedly during the weekend and on Sunday met with relatives and executives of her business empire.

The aunt, Artemis Garoufalides, told reporters today that her niece had postponed her return to Moscow until next week. "But this does not mean that she has decided to divorce her new husband," she said.

Miss Onassis married former Soviet shipping official Sergei Kauzov in Moscow last week after a whirlwind romance which took both the Western and Communist worlds by surprise.

But then, the new Mrs. Kauzov cancelled a planned honeymoon in Siberia and flew to Greece to stay at an Onassis family villa in the seaside resort of Glyfas.

One Greek newspaper, Kathimerini, reported today that the marriage might be considered dissolved.

Another newspaper, Proini Eleftherotypia, said: ". . . Christina has discovered that her Russian husband has 'other roles' and has abandoned him before she becomes more tied with him—through a religious marriage."

It added: "These roles, as mentioned by press reports abroad, are wider Russian plans to place under Russian control the interests of the Onassis group."

Europe Rains Claim 19 Lives

MILAN (UPI) — Torrential rains and gales hit northern Italy and southern Switzerland today, sending rivers and lakes over their banks and killing at least 19 people.

By mid-afternoon, 12 people were known dead and 10 were missing in Italy's Ossola valley near the Swiss border.

The Tessin region of southern Switzerland was devastated by the severe weather and first reports said seven people were killed there.

Heavy, hot winds that swept much of Italy Monday brought a rain storm that sent mountain streams and rivers over their banks in the Ossola and Aosta valleys.

At least 10 bridges, including four on the railroad line from Domodossola to Locarno, Switzerland, were swept away.

Mountain streams and rivers in Switzerland also overflowed, isolating villages and blocking railroad lines and passes into Italy.

A Swiss student died as his tent was swept away by an overflowing river. A 55-year-old mechanic was carried away by flood waters after the bridge he was standing on collapsed and a fireman drowned during a rescue operation.

In Lugano, Switzerland, the bodies of two 12-year-old girls were found buried under the debris of their home which had been swept by a landslide.

Police said two other persons drowned in a lake.

Zermatt, the famous ski resort, was cut off from the valley and hundreds of mountain climbers were stranded in shelters.

World Mourns Pope's Death

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A line of mourners standing 10 abreast and stretching for more than 100 metres waited to pass by the body of Pope Paul VI today at the summer papal residence at Castel Gandolfo as the Vatican made preparations for his burial Saturday and the election of his successor.

Pope Paul's closest aides and other prelates knelt and prayed in silence around his body through the night.

Sources at Castel Gandolfo estimated that more than 50,000 persons had passed through the Renaissance palace in the Alban Hills south of Rome to pay homage to the 262nd Roman Catholic pontiff who died there Sunday night after a heart attack.

The Pope's body lay on a catafalque, dressed in the red robes that he usually wore for funeral rites. Alongside was a crucifix on a long shaft, his favorite religious object. A tall candle burned as a symbol of eternal life.

The Pope's brother, Ludovico Montini, 83, a former Christian Democrat senator, attended a mass in the 16th-century San Tommaso da Villa Nuovo Church near the summer residence. The local population rushed to him to offer condolences, shaking his hand and patting him on the shoulder.

"No, no, don't worry," Montini told the parish priest, Rev. Angelo Pozzi, and others nearby. "Let's be certain that we eventually meet him in paradise."

Thousands more were expected to make the pilgrimage to Castel Gandolfo Tuesday and Wednesday. Bigger crowds will flock to St. Peter's Basilica after the body is transferred there Wednesday night, to lie in state until the funeral Saturday

No Monday Ferry Jam, Sunday Something Else

Travellers trying to avoid an expected traffic jam Monday on the Tsawwassen-Swartz Bay ferry run created one of their own on Sunday and again this morning.

Meanwhile, Monday traffic moved quite smoothly.

Sunday had been something else.

The traffic began building up Sunday morning and it increased during the day. Many of the travellers were tourists trying to avoid the predicted Monday crowds.

And many were in trailers and other tall vehicles that normally would have gone in the Queen of Alberni, which was out for repairs.

Traffic reached a peak at 7 p.m. Sunday with a three-to-four hour wait at Tsawwassen. The wait at Swartz Bay was about two hours.

The Alberni was taken out of service at noon Saturday for urgent repairs to the clutch but it was discovered the clutch shaft itself also needed work. Instead of returning to service on Sunday the ship is still out of action but is expected to be operational by Wednesday morning.

The corporation used extra morning sailings of the Queen of Tsawwassen, which is not a stretch ferry, using the Alberni's crew. The Tsawwassen normally is not used in the mornings because it has an afternoon shift and later operates the midnight run.

Meanwhile, traffic was heavy at Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen this morning with a high percentage of the vehicles being from out of province.

"It appears they were waiting to avoid the Monday crowds," B. C. Ferries traffic manager Bill Bouchard said.

"That Sunday traffic was quite a surprise, however. Normally on a long weekend Sunday will be quiet. A large number of the vehicles were from out of province and the good weather attracted a lot of visitors. Traffic is much heavier on the ferries this summer than it was last year."

He said the traffic flow, except for periods Sunday afternoon and this morning, went smoothly, given the large number of vehicles. The number of vehicles using the system in August is significantly higher than at the same time last year.

On the weekend there were incredible peaks and valleys.

For example, while there was at least a three-hour wait from Tsawwassen at 7 p.m. Sunday, the 10:15 p.m. Monday sailing from Swartz Bay was almost empty. It carried no cars at all. Its only traffic was one bus, containing 13 people.

The ferry was heading to Tsawwassen to become the midnight sailing, which carried a good load of 71 vehicles back to Swartz Bay.

Biggest load of the year for the midnight sailing came late Sunday when there were 93 vehicles, more than 70 per cent of capacity.

While traffic was heavy this morning, it was beginning to slacken by noon.

"During the summer, Monday is the busiest day of the week for tourist traffic but this week we got it today because Monday was a holiday," Bouchard said. "Overall, I think we got through the weekend rather well. It was unfortunate the Alberni was out of action but the repairs couldn't be delayed.

"We started work on it Saturday afternoon which usually is the quietest time of the week. We had hoped to have it back by Sunday but then they discovered trouble in the clutch shaft."

Next problem will be the one-day removal of the Queen of Nanaimo for repairs to the propeller shaft. It has not yet been decided what day it will be taken off the Nanaimo-Horseshoe Bay run for the repairs.

RAIN SCRAPS CLOSING

OCEAN FALLS (CP) — A weekend storm which dumped about 20 centimetres of rain on this parched central British Columbia coastal community has enabled Ocean Falls Corp. to scrap plans to shut down its newsprint mill, company president Ted Vesak said Monday.

The rainfall raised the water level in the mill's Hydro generation reservoir to 72.3 metres at the spillway, well below the top level of 82.4 metres but enough to ensure an adequate power supply to keep the two paper machines running.

An area renowned for its rainfall, Ocean Falls received only 2.2 centimetres of rain in the last five weeks, down from the July average of 16.5 centimetres. Vesak said the rain which began late Friday and continued into Monday was an eleventh-hour reprieve for the mill.

Most of the mill's 300 workers were laid off effective Sunday, many of them taking holidays or leaves of absence—but with the rain the company began to gear up to get the machines moving again.

One machine was scheduled to be back in operation today and the other tonight, with less than three days' production lost, Vesak said.

The mill has an annual capacity of 100,000 tons of newsprint.

Hearst Lawyer Hints 'Bucket of Worms'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst's efforts to have her conviction overturned by claiming F. Lee Bailey bungled her case might force him to disclose information on matters "far more serious than those she was tried for," the lawyer said.

Interviewed Monday on ABC-TV's Good Morning America show in New York, Bailey said Miss Hearst's motion for a new trial, filed here last week, might endanger the lawyer-client relationship that existed between the newspaper heiress and her lawyer.

"Anytime you attack a lawyer for his or her handling of the case, you are inviting a response that explains why every step was taken," Bailey said in the interview. "If the judge rules that her privilege has been waived by the attack and we are required to divulge everything she told us, there's a whole new bucket of worms on the table."

Bailey said he might be questioned about matters "far more serious than those she was tried for," but he would not elaborate.

In her motion for a new trial on her bank-robbery conviction, Miss Hearst alleged Bailey was "ineffective," that he seemed fatigued and was visibly shaking in the courtroom, and that she saw him swallow what appeared to be "hangover medicine."

Miss Hearst's motion was filed by lawyer George Martinez, who replaced Bailey and assistant Albert Johnson when they withdrew from the case in May.

During her trial for the San Francisco bank robbery, Miss Hearst invoked the fifth amendment against self-incrimination 42 times rather than tell how she spent the year between the holdup and her arrest here in September 1975. At the time, she was underground with her kidnappers from the Symbionese Liberation Army, who abducted her in February 1974.

Squatters Rushed, Policeman Dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gunfire erupted and one policeman was killed today after authorities using a bulldozer and a cherry-picker began demolishing the headquarters of a radical group called MOVE. Officials said at least seven persons were injured.

Three police officers, two firemen and two MOVE members were injured after helmeted police stormed the ramshackle three-storey house to remove those holed up inside, authorities said.

A trail of blood a half-block long smeared the street outside the house, about five blocks from the University of Pennsylvania campus.

At least six members of the group called MOVE, a name with no known significance, were arrested.

Earlier, a bulldozer smashed a stockade-like fence around the house in about 10 minutes and began plowing into the porch. Officers shouted for the MOVE members to "come out with your hands above your head."

Weather map unavailable today

Growing in size and strength overnight, a ridge of high pressure cleared skies over most of the province allowing the parched southern half of B.C. to cool to a comfortable level. A drying trend is expected in the north as the frontal system that produced record rainfalls on the north coast continues to be deflected northwards by the ridge. Near record temperatures in the low thirties roasted the south coast on Monday where only one measureable rainfall has occurred in the last 50 days, a sharp contrast from places like Terrace which received more than their normal August rainfall in a single day. With the ridge still building there is little chance of a significant change in the weather this week.

MINISTERS RESIGN

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)— Premier Frank Moores announced the resignation of two Newfoundland cabinet ministers Monday as a result of allegations of irregularities in the handling of government public works contracts.

Industrial Development Minister Tom Farrell and Labor Minister Joe Rousseau offered to quit their posts after their names were linked with alleged wrongdoing in the handling of works department contracts, the Progressive Conservative premier said.

Both men held the public works portfolio at various times between 1972 and 1976.

Questions raised in the legislature by Liberal opposition members led to a judicial inquiry by Mr. Justice John W. Mahoney of the Newfoundland Supreme Court.

Moores said: "Given the evidence before the Mahoney inquiry both Mr. Farrell and Mr. Rousseau approached me several weeks ago and offered me their resignations."

The investigation into works department spending has heard many allegations and suggestions of improper practices. Judge Mahoney has not yet given his report to the government. Moores said he expects to get the report sometime this fall.

"Both men told me no government should or could function with the slightest hint of wrongdoing by ministers of the Crown," Moores said, adding "I believe both men are innocent."

He said Farrell will continue working out of the government's western Newfoundland office in Corner Brook but his ministerial salary will be cut off. However, he would still receive his indemnity as a member of the House for Humber East, a Corner Brook area seat. Moores said Rousseau would leave St. John's for his Labrador riding of Menihek.

The premier declined to say who will replace the resigned ministers.

Driver Colorful, Anyway

Scarlet-coated RCMP Constable Al Girardin, the official driver assigned to the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Andrew during their busy Victoria visit Monday, found himself more decorative than useful.

He was reduced largely to a door-opening role by Prince Philip, who took over the wheel of the official car — a rented, bright yellow 1974 Rolls-Royce Corniche convertible — to drive himself from Government House to the Legislative Buildings, from the buildings to a symphony concert in Beacon Hill Park and then back to Government House.

It was one of the informal, unexpected touches which is the hallmark of the prince, and it delighted thousands of cheering spectators along the route.

A reporter asked the Ottawa-based Girardin, who drove the Queen during her recent visit to Canada, what Prince Philip had said when he first suggested he might drive.

Girardin replied: "When he says he's going to drive, he's going to drive."

And is the Duke a good driver?

"You don't really expect me to answer that, do you?"

Well, Al, one can always hope.

Warm Welcome for Princes

onlookers gathered to cheer and wave at intersections along the Patricia Bay Highway.

With many Victorians out of town for the long holiday weekend, downtown streets seemed largely deserted, but it was a large, enthusiastic crowd which had gathered outside the legislative buildings for the official welcoming ceremony by Premier Bill Bennett.

The first massive boom of a 21-gun salute rattled windows and fractured nerves as the motorcade arrived.

Prince Philip, a dazzling white figure in the full uniform of an admiral of the fleet, stood on the third step with the premier, and his blue-suited, 18-year-old son stood six steps above with Mrs. Bennett, while the Naden Band from CFB Esquimalt played the royal anthem.

Then the Duke inspected the 100-man guard of honor commanded by Lt.-Cdr. David Williams.

The unit, drawn from the fleet school, the base, ships in the harbor and the dockyard, had been in place for at least half an hour before the royal visitors' arrival, and Williams said later that five of the men succumbed to the heat.

Their places were smoothly taken by other personnel engaged in crowd control.

Williams said Prince Philip was quick to spot small details such as the ships' diving badges many of them were wearing, and the high proportion of navy beards.

In the first of several departures from prescribed routine, Prince Philip responded to Bennett's greetings by taking over the microphone.

"Thank you for your keen welcome and for being here in spite of it being a holiday," he said.

As he walked to the Cenotaph at Belleville and Government he stopped numerous times to talk to the crowd, and there were cries of "Smile, Philip" or "Look this way, Your Highness" as hundreds of cameras clicked away.

After lunch at the Esquimalt wardroom with Rear-Admiral Michael Martin, Commander, Maritime Forces Pacific, Mrs. Martin, senior officers and their wives, the Duke was driven to Government House where about 1,500 guests had been invited to a garden party.

They included many New Canadians who had recently been awarded their citizenship, Canadian Legion veterans, senior citizens, representatives of several organizations and youth groups.

Again Prince Philip and Prince Andrew plunged into the crowd, ruining officials' hopes of tight security, to talk to as many people as possible.

On their separate routes around the lawns the Duke was accompanied by Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving and Prince Andrew by Premier Bennett — who seemed to include a number of attractive young ladies among the introductions.

While not as totally relaxed as his father, a veteran of many such social marathons, Prince Andrew nevertheless displayed a royal aptitude for small-talk as well as a sense of humor.

Murray Thompson, a retired high school teacher from Duncan, told him: "Unless I shake hands with you, Your Royal Highness, I don't think my daughter will let me in the house tonight."

Replied the prince, laughing: "Perhaps in that case I'd better hold on."

Prince Andrew later stayed behind at Government House for a private swimming party while his father — at the wheel — drove to the Legislative Buildings to present Duke of Edinburgh awards to 23 young people who had completed the character-development program.

Prince Philip's last public engagement of the day was a half-hour visit to the Victoria Symphony concert in Beacon Hill Park, where he was greeted by Victoria Mayor Mike Young and Mrs. Young.

On the way to his seat he pointed, laughingly, at attractive Janet Jadresko, 19, who was precariously perched on the shoulders of her 22-year-old companion Nacky Leonidas.

"How did you get up way up there?" Prince Philip asked.

Janet said later: "We've followed them all day, it was great."

Bennett also announced during the dinner that the B.C. government would provide eight Duke of Edinburgh scholarships, valued at $6,000 each, to the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific — one of the United World Colleges headed by the prince's son Charles.

Bennett said the scholarships will permit "worthy young British Columbians to benefit from the unique international educational experience."

The Tragedy of Stevie

Last week we printed the story of "Stevie" (not his real name), the 16-year-old youth who has attracted province-wide notice as a dramatic example of a provincial tragedy: the kids with problems with no place to go.

Officially Stevie is a "juvenile delinquent," a kid-criminal, and a serious one at that since the offence that brought him before the court involved a stabbing. But what has been made abundantly clear in the ensuing publicity is that Stevie is no ordinary kid-criminal but rather a brain-damaged boy with a lifetime of physical, mental and emotional problems.

His parents had been trying to get help for him for three years before his last offence, but had found none that was appropriate. When the combined resources of our juvenile justice system were brought to bear on the problem, they couldn't find any either.

Everyone involved in the case has agreed that Stevie is too disturbed at the moment to be allowed back on the street, that his problems make him a danger to others. What he needs is a locked institution where he will be kept under close supervision but will also receive the intensive treatment he needs so that he can safely be allowed back into society.

There is no such place in B.C.

The Social Credit government began a program of "containment centres" for "hard-core juvenile delinquents" but the program was declared unconstitutional by the courts so the centres are no longer operating. In any case, the containment centres were not geared towards providing the sort of intensive help that Stevie needs; they were more like mini-jails.

The Eric Martin Institute treats people with mental and emotional problems but it doesn't deal with teenagers since the government won't give it the money to staff a teenagers' ward. It wouldn't take Stevie.

Ontario does have a treatment centre that deals with cases like Stevie's, but the provincial government won't pay to have him treated there.

Finally, in desperation, Family Court Judge Lawrence Brahan last week imposed a sentence on Stevie that will have him remain in the Victoria Juvenile Detention Home for as long as three years while he undergoes treatment supervised by a health ministry psychologist.

Everyone involved knows that the JDH is not the right place for Stevie. It is basically a jail, complete with bars on the windows and barbed wire around a tiny recreation yard. It is not designed to hold youths for longer than a week. But it's the least evil of a number of bad alternatives.

There are other Stevies in B.C. — not a large number of them, perhaps rarely more than a dozen at a time.

But a society is judged, in part, on how it treats its weakest members. The treatment we give to those few Stevies, surely some of our weakest members, should make us all ashamed.

A Double Standard

The Chamber of Commerce, we always thought, was an organization with the aim of encouraging businesses, large and small, in Victoria. However, it appears we were mistaken.

The chamber's attitude towards a group of new city businesses — to wit, the food-sellers on the Causeway — has been anything but encouraging. Indeed the chamber has now announced it is "monitoring" the hawkers to see if it can get them to "clean up their act."

Now, heaven knows, the city went into the business of allowing causeway hawkers in a haphazard, unplanned way, and as a result there are problems. It's silly surely that the bylaw would allow 100 sellers of popcorn on the causeway but wouldn't admit someone who came along with a new, interesting food product he wanted to sell. Moreover, it may be necessary to restrict more stringently the areas in which individual hawkers can work instead of allowing each of them to roam all over the causeway.

But the chamber's beefs don't deal with these sort of issues. Instead it complains that the carts "are not anything like what we expected" (without saying what it did expect), that the operators aren't colorful, that they aren't in costume, and that the carts cause litter.

Without being picky, we haven't recently (not since Victorian Days, anyway) observed very many members of the Chamber of Commerce in costume, nor looking particularly colorful. We can't say that we think many of the souvenir shops just north of the causeway add much to the local character with their displays of plastic flower baskets and imitation native carvings.

And we haven't noticed the chamber blaming fast-food outlets and drugstores for the proliferation of soft drink cups and chocolate-bar wrappers on city streets. It's usually considered to be the buyer who causes the litter, not the seller.

The young people manning the causeway carts are the same young people who would be castigated by the chamber if they were collecting unemployment insurance because they couldn't find work. Now that they have made their own work, they should be encouraged.

That means the chamber should offer constructive suggestions for improvement but not vague, carping complaints. Neither should it demand higher standards from the causeway sellers than it demands from its own members.

American Politics Fractured

WASHINGTON — Chairman John C. White of the Democratic National Committee has warned Democratic candidates to stop taking "cheap shots" at President Carter, and also predicted that Carter will be opposed for renomination in 1980, probably by an "issues-oriented" candidate.

Even taking into account whatever Carter's personal weakness as president may be, White's statement seems to reflect a decline in the institutional power of the presidency to command respect and keep party colleagues in line. It has been suggested, in fact, that more independent members of a more powerful congress heightened interest-group consciousness (when Youngstown Sheet and Tube closed last year, a 300-member congressional "steel caucus" was formed in less than 10 days), and an infinite variety of sophisticated new lobbying organizations and techniques may be beginning to "bring the system to a halt."

All Kinds of Perks

A member of the House running for re-election, for example, now begins with at least the following advantages provided by taxpayers of both parties:

Unlimited franked first-class postage (for "non-political" mailings, of course), $255,144 in staff allowances, $20,000 for telephone services, three staffed offices in the home district (one of which can be a mobile van), a printed newsletter in which all sorts of constituent meetings and notices can be publicized, and other perquisites large and small — such as an allowance for heavy-duty brown envelopes.

Frank R. Wolf of Virginia, a candidate against Rep. Joseph L. Fisher of that state's 10th district, pointed out in The Washington Post that it would cost his campaign $12,000 to finance and staff a van, $4,500 in first class postage to announce a meeting and $15,000 to send a printed newsletter to all 10th district households.

The taxpayers foot such bills, if they can be construed as involving legitimate constituent services, for incumbent members. But challengers like Wolf must pay them out of campaign chests limited to $1,000 contributions by individuals and $5,000 by PACs — the political action committees that corporations, unions and other groups are entitled to organize.

Wolf wrote bravely of defeating Fisher anyway, and maybe he can. But he himself pointed to the paradox that is the point here: polls suggest that only 39 per cent of the American people think their own representatives are doing a good job — while the fact is that 97 per cent of those who seek re-election win it. It's hard to escape the conclusion that congressional perquisites and spending limits on challengers give incumbents in the House of Representatives a high degree of immunity.

RONALD REAGAN
. . . faces internal challenge

In an age, anyway, when political candidates win election primarily by television imagery, not by party label or ideology, well-protected members of the House quickly become more independent of either presidential or party discipline than they once were. Ironically enough, the substantial generational change in congress seems also to be contributing to that independence.

Seventeen new senators took office in 1977, for example, and in January, 1979, more than half of that body will have joined it since 1970. Even in the House, where there have been numerous retirements, more than 60 per cent of the members in January, 1979 will have served two terms or less.

This leads Carter's congressional liaison chief, Frank Moore, to quip that since 1977 he's become "an old-timer" on Capitol Hill — and some Washington observers to charge that the new members, mostly products of television rather than of party politics, act more from individual political motives than as party members, or even as Carter supporters or opponents.

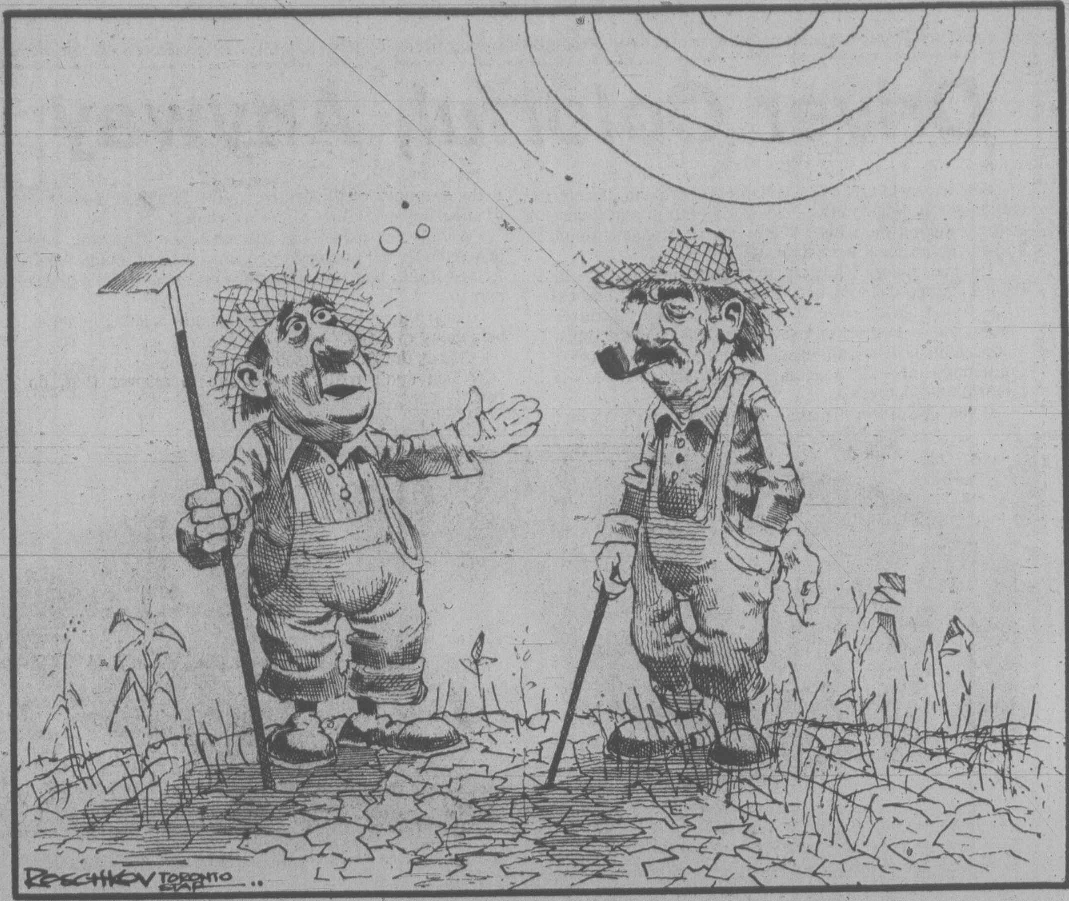
Reforms in recent years also have weakened the power of committee chairmen and "deans" of state delegations to discipline and influence important voting blocs. At the same time, the president himself may have been made more vulnerable to challenge than at any time in this century.

Fractionated Congress

The new proliferation of state primaries, together with the provision of federal subsidies even for primary candidates, constitutes a virtual invitation to opposition from a president's own as well as from the other party — hence a decline in his power to punish or reward. White's statement recognized that fact; and on the same day, a relatively unknown conservative, Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois, said he would announce his presidential candidacy before Labor Day — the kind of internal challenge to Ronald Reagan's Republican primacy that would not have been practical before 1976.

In these circumstances, Frank Moore laments, he can sometimes put together a coalition for a single narrow bill, but almost never for a complicated or comprehensive plan like Carter's energy proposals, or civil service reform. Even so, he has to put together a different coalition for each bill that succeeds and for each, he says, "You've got to lobby every member."

Thus, power in Washington has been fractionated by reform and circumstance — not in every case a bad thing. But it's unquestionably now harder for a president to produce; and there are many more points at which concerned interests can stick in a monkey wrench and bring the action to a halt.



"Might know it — as soon as the government starts foolin' around with that solar energy stuff, things would get messed up."

FRED CLEVERLEY

Who Will Own Cable TV?

WINNIPEG — Later this month, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) will hold public hearings into a matter that could change the pattern of cable television across Canada.

At the hearings, the CRTC will hear applications from three rural Manitoba cable television companies for amendments to their licences to allow the publicly-owned Manitoba Telephone System to own every piece of cable hardware in their distribution systems.

While the applications are being made by the companies, the real applicant is the Manitoba Telephone System, which has been in a head-on confrontation with the two operating Winnipeg cable companies over the ownership of hardware for the last two years.

CRTC Opposed

The hearings also may influence the policy of the CRTC, which so far has opposed telephone ownership of the complete delivery system, and which has continued to oppose the ownership despite a special deal worked out between Ottawa and the Manitoba Telephone System to allow it.

If the CRTC reverses itself on the question of ownership, it could reopen the battle in which Bell Canada was prohibited, by court order, from adopting a position similar to the Manitoba telephone company.

The fight is nominally over the ownership of "house drops," or that piece of cable that connects the individual home with the line on the telephone pole. In Manitoba, this is the only actual hardware owned by the cable companies, since the telephone system has long taken over the "head end" receiving stations and the long-distance transmission of cable signals.

But this last ownership is vital to the cable companies, who see it as the last thing that prevents them from becoming simple collection agencies for the government distribution network. The companies also see the ownership of these vital links as powerful leverage against any attempt at government control of program content.

The government telephone organization, on the other hand, sees the retention of house drop ownership by the cable companies as a means of skimming off additional profits as the use of cable to deliver community information, shopping lists and even newspapers becomes a reality.

The CRTC has consistently opposed telephone ownership of the complete distribution system because, as an agency of the federal government, it considers such ownership an intrusion by provincial governments into what has been the exclusive federal field of communications.

The CRTC also has suggested that the ownership of cable franchises should be as diverse as possible in order to protect the consumer.

In Manitoba's case, the consumer is in danger of becoming an involuntary shareholder in a business which is dependent on advancing technology that can wipe out previous investments overnight. When cable television was first proposed for Manitoba, the then-administration of Conservative Duff Roblin decided that no public money should be invested in a risky, luxury business. Besides the investment ($10 million) then required, the government received advice from its telephone system engineers that the delivery of a saleable cable signal in Winnipeg was doubtful due to the distances involved. The American stations that were to be picked up were between 120 and 150 miles away from Winnipeg.

The Manitoba Telephone System extracted from the two Winnipeg cable companies who obtained licences from the federal government a contract considered to be the most severe, economically, in Canada. Line rentals were well above those of Ontario, and the companies were required to advance the capital for the distribution equipment that would be mostly owned by the government telephone system.

The equipment was installed, the signal was a commercial success, and the government changed. The New Democratic Party administration in Manitoba began a program aimed toward complete telephone ownershp of cable facilities.

The moves were opposed by the Conservative opposition. But when the Conservatives took office last October, they proceeded to execute a 180-degree turn in direction, and pursued the objective of government control. The suspicion is that the dollar-conscious Conservative government wants the money it believs will flow from cable ownership.

The two Winnipeg companies continued to oppose the change, but in a move to deliver cable signals throughout rural Manitoba, the government found three other smaller companies that were willing to have the telephone system own everything.

One company, serving small communities south of Winnipeg, has taken the same position as the Winnipeg firms in opposing the government takeover.

It, along with the Winnipeg firms, argues that cable itself is becoming obsolete and that signals will soon be delivered more efficiently by satellite.

Horse and Buggy

The last argument is the most significant for taxpayers. If the cable companies are right, then the Manitoba Telephone System, in an effort to establish a monopoly ownership of cable in Manitoba, will spend close to $30 million on what the cable operators describe as a "horse and buggy" delivery system that will be obsolete before it goes into service.

The cable operators claim that the investment, necessary to service 19 communities by cable, could service 900 communities via satellite.

Besides this risk, there is a new principle that will be established that is possible only under government ownershp. Cable subscribers in Winnipeg will be required, through their user fees, to pay most of the cost of providing cable signals to rural residents.

If only private companies were involved, no one would suggest such a possibility.

CARAL Here

Some concerned citizens are forming a branch of CARAL in the Victoria community. CARAL stands for freedom of choice on abortion.

Our aims are the repeal of all sections of the Criminal Code dealing with abortion, and the establishment of comprehensive contraceptive and abortion services, including appropriate counselling across the country. We regard the right to safe, legal abortion as a fundamental human right.

A woman faced with the problem of an unwanted pregnancy must have the freedom to choose whether to continue the pregnancy or to have a safe, legal abortion. She may choose to seek assistance and advice from her partner, her family, her physician, or her church, but she should not have to worry about politicians, or the criminal law.

Anyone wishing to support these efforts please contact us at the following address: CARAL, P.O. Box 6282, Depot C, Victoria V8P 5L5. — L. Thomson, Victoria.

Feingold's Coming

Many thanks for the interesting and informative article on the research Dr. Ben Feingold, director of the Kaiser Permanente medical centre in San Francisco, is doing on the contributive factors of hyperactivity (Additives Fuel Hyperactivity: MD; Times, July 26).

Perhaps your readers and parents of "hyperactive" children, in particular, should be aware of the fact that Dr. Feingold will be here in Victoria in the fall. He will be a guest speaker at the fall conference, sponsored by the Victoria Primary and Kindergarten Teachers Association to be held at Mount Douglas Senior Secondary School on Oct. 13 and 14. — Mrs. Elaine Shirley, 6631 Oldfield Road.

Don't Widen It

I recently noticed that a Langford businessman, C. Danbrook explained the "highways [deparrtment] is purchasing land along the Trans-Canada in preparation for widening to four lanes" (referring to land between Goldstream and Sooke Lake roads).

Of course we have watched with interest the widening of the Trans-Canada from Douglas to the Thetis Lake underpass. We also know that the up-Island highway has been undergoing widening and improving, rightly so, for safety sake alone.

Now comes the question — does the above quote about land purchases mean that the Trans-Canada will be four lanes wide through beautiful little Goldstream Park?

At present there is a ferry from near Mill Bay to Brentwood, almost hourly until about 6 p.m. It is a small ferry. Since many of the persons using this ferry are on their way to or from Victoria Airport or the Swartz Bay terminal, why couldn't the service be improved with larger ferries or half hour service, and evening trips. The route of the ferry ideally should be from a point closer to Mill Bay to a point just north of the Oceanographic Institute in Patricia Bay. If this route were possible it would be roughly 10 miles from Mill Bay to the ferry terminal.

This would certanly take a great deal of traffic off the Trans-Canada and obviate the need for widening the road through Goldstream Park. It would provide an alternative route for Islanders and tourist alike to explore and travel. Business and commercial traffic preferring the shorter route would welcome the savings. And, for many of us, we could all appreciate and enjoy little Goldsteam Park, with its beautiful trees and stream intact! — J. Bryant, Victoria.

How Can We End Biological Massacre?

By ERIK ECKHOLM

(Eckholm is a author and researcher with Worldwatch Institute. He wrote this for The Washington Post)

Lush vegetation on island of Palau in Micronesia, site of proposed supertanker port.

To most people, talk of "endangered species" evokes images of tigers under siege in Asia and cheetahs losing ground in Africa, of whales hunted to scarcity in the Antarctic and whooping cranes clinging to life in North America. For those who follow such matters, it may also bring to mind recent positive preservation developments: whaling quotas, restrictions on trade in rare-animal pelts, DDT bans and international save-the-tiger campaigns, among others.

Even as such salvaging operations finally get under way, however, many leading biologists have begun sounding the alarm about an unsolved, unsung species problem of vaster proportions and wider implications. At risk, the scientists say, are not just hundreds of familiar and appealing birds and mammals. Examination of the survival prospects of all forms of plant and animal life — including obscure ferns, shurbs, insects and molluscs as well as elephants and wolves — indicates that huge numbers of them have little future.

Not hundreds, but hundreds of thousands of unique, irreplaceable life forms may vanish by the century's end.

Should this biological massacre take place, evolution will no doubt continue, but in a grossly distorted manner. Such a multitude of species losses would constitute a basic and irreversible alteration in the nature of the biosphere even before we understand its workings — an evolutionary Rubicon whose crossing Homo sapiens would do well to avoid.

Estimates of the number of plant and animal species living on earth range from 3 million to more than 10 million, with recent findings on the diversity of insects in particular supporting the higher approximation. Yet to date only about 1.5 million species — about 15 to 50 per cent of the presumed total — have been recorded in the scientific literature. It is likely that several million insects and plants — along with far fewer members of other animal classes — await discovery, mainly in the tropics.

Species vanish each year

If current patterns of human activity continue, a good share of the unrecorded majority of species will vanish before their existence, much less their biological importance or economic utility, is established.

Currently, the International Union for the Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources (IUCN) estimates, an average of one animal species or subspecies is lost each year. However, although endangered animals receive the greatest public attention, plant extinctions are often more significant ecologically. According to Peter Raven, a disappearing plant can take with it 10 to 30 dependent species such as insects, higher animals, and even other plants.

Estimates of the past and current rates of plant extinctions are not available, but the IUCN's Threatened Plants Committee finds about 10 per cent (20,000 to 30,000) of the world's flowering plants to be "dangerously rare or under threat."

These estimates of species at risk greatly understate the true problem, for they deal only with known life forms. All evidence indicates that sizable, if unknown, numbers of unnamed species are disappearing in scientifically uncharted areas in the tropics.

In his forthcoming book, The Sinking Ark, wildlife specialist Norman Myers concludes that, right now, probably at least one species is disappearing each day in tropical forests alone — and that in a few more years there may well be species lost each hour.

Biologist Thomas Lovejoy, of the World Wildlife Fund, extrapolating current trends in population, land use and the pollution of air and water, finds plausible a reduction in global diversity of at least one-sixth by the year 2000, which would mean the obliteration of 500.000 species based on the lowest estimates of total species numbers.

If this projection is even remotely close to correct, then no one can accuse the many alarmed scientists of crying wolf. The fabric of life will not just suffer a minor rip; sections of it will be torn to shreds.

Humans destroy fellow species in numerous ways, including excessive hunting and collection and the release of toxic chemicals into the air and water. Over the next few decades, however, by far the biggest single cause of extinctions will be the destruction of habitats.

As both populations and economies grow, and human settlements sprawl, undisturbed natural areas shrink. Essential wildlife breeding zones, migration routes and browsing and hunting domains are paved, inundated with water, grazed or plowed. Forest lands are denuded by farmers, timber companies and firewood gatherers, and then are given over to cattle, crops or non-native tree species.

The problem of habitat destruction exists on every continent, but it is particularly serious in the humid tropics, which is where the major species losses are predicted. Suffused with exceptional amounts of light, warmth and moisture, the tropical rain forests house a remarkable variety of ecosystems and species — and large areas, particularly in the Amazon Basin, remain unknown territory to scientists.

But the blunt truth is that huge, perhaps inexorable pressures to exploit the remaining virgin territories of the tropics are building. Many tropical forests lie within countries that, though biologically affluent, are economically poor, and whose governments are not inclined to value abstract, long-term ecological goals above immediate economic gains.

Unequal land tenure and rapid population growth cause additional encroachments into the forests even in more prosperous tropical countries. Affluent people in faraway lands, who demand wood and agricultural products, add to the pressures on tropical ecosystems, and international corporations are well equipped to facilitate the extraction and international transfer of tropical goods.

Because of this combination of powerful social forces contributing to the settlement or disruption of hitherto unexploited tropical lands, many scientists fear that little untouched rain forest will be left by the year 2000. Certainly not all the forest lands will be inhabited or treeless — and some remote regions may remain pristine. But once disturbed, the original balance of rain-forest species in a given area may be forever lost. Large tropical areas must be set aside as biological reserves if massive extinctions are to be avoided.

Do the projected species losses matter? For a wide range of reasons, a decline in the diversity of life forms should be of concern to everyone. The biological impoverishment of the earth will certainly contribute to the economic, let alone the esthetic, impoverishment of humans.

Seed banks inadequate

Probably the most immediate threat posed by the loss of biological diversity arises from the shrinking of the plant gene pools available to agricultural and forestry breeders. While crop genetic diversity can be largely preserved through seed collection and storage, wild relatives of crops may have properties of enormous potential value and are less apt than domestic strains to be collected. Moreover, despite recent international initiatives, existing seed banks are still badly incomplete.

In an age of plastics and moonshots, few people appreciate the extent to which humans remain dependent on natural products. Wild plants and animals provide the basis for life of many traditional peoples in Africa, Asia and Latin America — reason enough for their preservation. But in even the most technologically advanced societies, products derived from plants and animals serve a variety of crucial industrial, medical and other purposes.

Perhaps the greatest social costs of species destruction will stem from future opportunities unknowingly lost. Forty per cent of the modern pharmacopoeia has originated in nature, yet only a small fraction of the earth's plant species have been screened for medically useful ingredients.

Nearly all the food humans eat comes from only about 20 crops, but thousands of plants are edible, and some will undoubtedly prove useful in meeting human food needs. It is certain that socially significant uses will be discovered for many tropical plants as more are studied.

No one can confidently say that products of comparable significance to rubber or quinine remain to be discovered. But no one can confidently say they don't, either.

Beyond particular economic or scientific losses caused by species destruction lies a more basic threat: the disruption of ecosystems on which human well-being depends. No matter how sophisticated modern technologies may seem, human livelihoods are ultimately grounded in biological processes, enmeshed in ecological webs so intricate that the consequences of destabilization cannot often be foreseen.

Crushed by the march of civilization, one species can take many others with it, and the ecological repercussions and rearrangements that follow may well endanger people.

One common result of environmental degradation, for example, is an increase in the prevalence of small, hardy, fast-reproducing plants and animals of the sorts usually considered pests. Events such as the overruning of crops by pests or the sudden spread of a disease may easily be perceived as matters of chance when in fact they are the direct result of ecosystem degradation.

No one could claim that all existing species are ecologically essential to the viability of human culture. But scientists cannot yet say where the critical thresholds lie, at what level of species extermination the web of life will be seriously disrupted. Identifying and protecting those species whose ecological functions are especially important to human society are crucial tasks facing both scientists and governments. In the meantime, prudence dictates giving existing organisms as much benefit of the doubt as possible.

In the long run, philosophical considerations may prove as potent as economic considerations as a force for species preservation. Australian geneticist Otto Frankel has urged the world-wide adoption of an "evolutionary ethic" — a determination to "try to keep evolutionary options open so far as we can" without forcing "undue deprivations on those least able to bear them."

The alternative to living by such a creed is destroying many of those habitats and species that do not seem immediately useful; humans would appoint themselves as the ultimate arbiters of evolution and determine its future course on the basis of short-term considerations and a great deal of ignorance.

The descent from the airy summit of evolutionary ethics to the everyday human landscape of the tropical world is a jarring one. To be rich in birds, insects, trees and fungi is not necessarily to be rich in food and consumer goods. Far from it: many of the countries in which the great species wipe-out will soon unfold are burgeoning with the destitute.

When nations are poor, the temptation to choose short-term material benefits regardless of future ecological costs often proves irresistible. Local entrepreneurs or multinational companies who offer to turn standing forests into salable timber, and unoccupied lands into beef-producing pastures, are seldom turned down by governments eager to acquire foreign exchange.

Likewise, besieged by restless legions of the jobless and the landless, governments are naturally inclined to transform remaining pristine areas into agricultural settlements — and in fact often lack the ability to prevent such transformations even when they want to.

Despite the countervailing pressures, a few tropical countries, including Colombia, Costa Rica, Peru, Thailand and Venezuela, have already established sizable, if not yet adequate, natural reserves. Leaders in wildlife-rich Kenya and Tanzania have also initiated far-sighted conservation policies; Kenya has gone so far as to ban all sales of animal-derived souvenirs.

Yet even in countries with excellent conservation laws and ample nature reserves —let alone in countries where political leaders lack enough appreciation of biological diversity to act on its behalf — the permanent protection of large natural areas will be feasible only if the deeper socio-economic forces that imperil them are dispelled.

'Decent living' comes first

Whatever the proclamations from national capitals, and whatever the economic progress registered in aggregate gross-national-product accounts, as long as large numbers are denied the means to make a decent living, the nature reserves will be in jeopardy.

Unless national and international economic systems provide many more people with land or jobs, the dispossessed will naturally covet and molest "legally protected" lands, trees, and animals. Similarly, if rapid population growth in tropical countries is not soon slowed, human pressures to exploit virgin territories will overwhelm even the most stalwart conservation efforts.

Success in bringing down birth-rates, however, is also at least partly dependent on more general social progress. Immediate human survival needs will always take precedence over long-term environmental goals. Clearly, the struggle to save species and unique ecosystems cannot be divorced from the broader struggle to achieve a social order in which the basic needs of all are met.

Parenthood without Headaches

By GARY LAUTENS

The world's first test-tube baby was born last month in England and, naturally, everyone's delighted.

What this scientific breakthrough means is that a man and woman no longer have to waste an entire evening together for conception to take place. Technicians can make the baby for them at the lab.

That's right. The couple can attend a baseball game, make out their income tax, take separate vacations, restuff a chesterfield — anything — and become parents at the very same time, miles away.

Isn't it fantastic?

No more exotic colognes to buy. No more saucy winks and teasing giggles. No more candlelight and Billy Bee tumblers filled to the brim with Bright's second-best sherry. No more Saturday night disruptions because of nasty headaches.

No, instead the night of passion will go like this:

"Dear, we've been together almost two years now and I've been thinking . . ."

"What have you been thinking, blossom of my life?"

"I've been thinking, wouldn't it be nice to hear the pitter-patter of little feet around the apartment? We have the extra bedroom . . ."

"If you want a dog, dearest, why didn't you say so? Go ahead. Get a pup, just as long as it isn't a St. Bernard or a doberman named Heinrich."

"Silly, I'm not talking about a dog. I'm talking about a baby."

"Don't get me wrong, darling, but do you think we have time for a baby?"

"I could get a leave of absence from my job, perhaps even quit for a year or so. It would be fun to have someone to play with, to take for walks to the park, to read Dr. Seuss stories to, watch grow up."

"That's not the part I'm concerned about, sweetness. After I turn 24 in the fall, I'm sure I'll have lots of time to stay home and play with a baby. What else do middle-aged people have to do? It's the time to conceive the baby that I'm thinking of."

"What do you mean?"

"Well, for example, tonight's my bowling night and I'm the high triple leader. Tomorrow you know I always watch the New Avengers on TV. Saturday I have to wash the Pinto. Well, it's like that to the end of the month at least. Besides, you're just as busy. Isn't tonight your batik night?"

"Yes, but what has that to do with it?"

"Honey bun, I just don't have a spare moment one night this week to splash on the Brut, dig out the Ricardo Montalban sleepies, and find the Barry Manilow LP for the stereo."

"I'm not asking you to ruin an entire evening. All I'm asking you to do is drop into the maternity lab some noon hour. All it takes is 30 minutes or so."

"Oh, well, I suppose I could make it, say Tuesday. Usually I play catch with the guys in the parking lot but if it means becoming a father, I could make an exception."

"Tuesday? That's wonderful. I can't make it Tuesday because Dolores wants to go shopping and I promised to help her, but I can make it Wednesday. Wednesday noon is definitely clear. I'll make the arrangements."

"Okay. Got to rush or I'll miss the first frame."

"Don't forget your bowling shoes — daddy! And bring me home a dill pickle and a quart of baseball nut ice cream."

"Darling, our test tube isn't pregnant yet."

"I can't help it. I'm so excited. I would not be surprised if I throw up tomorrow before breakfast."

"Sweetums, one thing: Do the scientists provide the baby with a name, or do we have to do that for ourselves?"

Polio Carriers Quarantined

Canadian Press

Fifteen Ontario residents have been quarantined after coming in contact with polio virus, Dennis Timbrell, Ontario health minister, said Monday.

The 15, residents of Oxford County, near Woodstock and in Dehli, 16 kilometres west of Simcoe, have been quarantined under the power of the Public Health Act.

Timbrell said in a news release that laboratory tests have confirmed that Reick Van Vleit, 24, of Norwich, also in Oxford County, has paralytic polio.

His brother, Cornelius, 21, has non-paralytic polio.

Another brother, James, 14 has been diagnosed as having paralytic polio but a laboratory confirmation has not been made.

The minister said laboratory tests have confirmed Type 1 polio virus in the 15 persons under quarantine. He emphasized that those under quarantine are not sick but he did not give further details.

Two of the brothers, Reick and James, were quarantined July 27 in a London, Ont. hospital after they were diagnosed as suffering from polio.

The brothers are members of a fundamentalist Protestant sect, the Netherlands Reformed Congregation.

Some members of the group do not believe in vaccinations but Rev. Adrian DeBoer, minister of the Norwich church, said his faith does not advocate its members avoid vaccinations. He said the Bible teaches that God is the physician so some members might not use the medicine.

Other members of the sect also are suffering from the disease.

An eight-year-old boy from Lethbridge, Alta., suffering from partial parlytic polio, is improving, doctors say.

A 25-year-old Chilliwack, B.C. mushroom farmer is in hospital suffering from paralytic polio.

A 17-year-old Dutch youth, suspected of being a carrier of the disease, has been confined to a Chilliwack home since Saturday. He is expected to return to the Netherlands today.

Search Is On For Milfoil

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ministry of environment employees are surveying the Lower Mainland area to determine the extent of Eurasian milfoil in the area.

Bob Nijman, coordinator of mapping and planning, said so far they "are not finding that much."

However, he said traces of the aquatic weed, which infests about 2,000 acres of the Okanagan Lakes system in the B.C. Interior, has been found in Cultus Lake near Chilliwack, in Maple Lake on Pender Island and in ponds in Delta and in Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Park.

He said the weed was probably transported to Cultus Lake by boats which had been in the Okanagan area and to the other areas by waterfowl.

CHUTIST INJURED

VANCOUVER (CP) — David Gibson, 23, of Prince George was in satisfactory condition in hospital here Monday following a parachuting accident in the Prince George area Sunday.

Gibson suffered a broken back when the wind spilled the air out of his parachute at the Chief Lake drop zone near Prince George. He fell the remaining 50 feet of his jump.

Games Late, 'Ripoff' Charged

EDMONTON (CP) — Tempers flared at Commonwealth Stadium Sunday as morning events ran overtime and afternoon ticket holders had to wait outside.

Afternoon events were to begin at 1:15 p.m. MDT but actually ended up starting at 2:30 p.m..

"What a bloody ripoff," one man said when the gates were opened at 2 p.m. for the afternoon crowd.

"This ticket says 1:15 p.m.," he said. "It's 2 p.m. and counting. Kids in the line-up were practically trampled and there wasn't even one security guard.

The Sunday program at the stadium was the first which used the stadium for a whole day and required the morning crowd to leave and allow afternoon spectators to come in with different tickets. The opening ceremonies Thursday used the facility only in the afteroon and no change-over was necessary.

Asked about the delay, Ken Coupe, crowd control co-ordinator on the stadium concourse level, said: "Diane (Jones-Konihowski) went on and on in the high jump. But you can't blame her for that."

Man, 24, Swims Strait

VANCOUVER (CP) — John McDermott of Burnaby successfully completed his long swim from Nanaimo across the Georgia Strait Saturday night, but fell well short of his goal of breaking the trans-Strait record.

McDermott, 24, stepped into the water near Nanaimo at 9 a.m. local time and touched the mainland shortly after 11 p.m. The record time of nine hours for the 24-kilometre swiw was set in 1967.

He was unable to reach his target on the Sechelt Peninsula due to heavy ocean currents and finally landed about 11 kilometres from his planned destination.

But that didn't dampen his spirit—he waded from the water, marked his landing spot, and sipped champagne.

McDermott said it was a great experience, but didn't think he'd try it again.

Pirates To Die

MANILA (AP) — A military court has sentenced four men to death by firing squad after they were convicted of piracy for attempting an armed hijacking of a tugboat towing barges of sugar in the central Philippines in 1975. The four, arrested the day of the attempted hijacking were sentenced Friday.

Bus Lacked Back-Up Brakes

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — "There are probably thousands of old passenger buses without auxiliary brake systems travelling North American roads today," says a previous owner of the bus which plunged into Lac d'Argent Friday night killing 40 people.

Arthur Lessard, owner of Lessard Bus Lines Inc. of Sherbrooke, said neither the Quebec nor federal governments ever inspect passenger buses, although they inspect school buses every few months.

"This is terribly unfortunate," said Lessard, who has been in the business of transporting people for 23 years.

"I consider myself an expert after all that time, and when we sold that bus last year to Girardin Bus Lines it was in perfect order."

The bus was resold for $12,000 nine months ago to Gilles Bolduc of Asbestos after a complete overhaul.

The 1956 General Motors 41-seat bus had none of the three emergency auxiliary brake systems available on buses beginning in the early 1960s.

These systems work as follows:

— When pressure in the brake system drops below 60 pounds per square inch, the rear wheels lock and the bus stops within a few metres.

— A "Jacob" brake—part of the engine—doubles enginge compression when engaged by a flick of a switch, slowing the bus to a crawl, then stopping it.

— A hand emergency brake quickly stops the bus with the push of a button.

Lessard, emphasizing that he knew no more about the accident than what he had heard or read, said a rubber brake cylinder diaphragm in one of the wheels might have "blown," causing loss of pressure within seconds and subsequent brake failure.

Lessard, a trained driver, demonstrated the auxiliary systems on one of his buses for two reporters.

"There are probably thousands of those old buses on the road in North America today," Lessard said.

"I could show you several in Sherbrooke alone that climb hills on their routes every day. One of the best things that ever happened in the transport business in Quebec was inspection of school buses."

That began shortly after a school bus-train collision in 1963 in Dorion, Que., he said.

"Those are very strict inspections, but so far we have never had any inspection of highway or city passenger buses in Quebec."

Some of Lessard's buses travel to New York state, where he says inspections are so rigid that buses have been sent back to Canada if they don't carry the proper state certification.

Postal Crown Corporation Doesn't End Strike Threat

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers will not call off a planned strike this fall, despite plans to change the post office into a Crown corporation, says union president Jean-Claude Parrot.

Speaking on CTV's Question Period taped in advance, Parrot said the Canadian Union of Postal Workers has been waiting 15 months for a contract and is not prepared to wait another two years while the new corporation is set up. He accused the government of stalling the negotiations.

"I'm not negotiating a strike. I am negotiating a collective agreement. If we have to use the recourse of a strike, what else can we do after 15 months of negotiation when the employer refuses even to make proposals at the bargaining table."

The main issues in the negotiations are technological change, casual workers, and "the abuse of discipline that exists right now in management against the postal workers."

Asked why he didn't postpone the strike and see how the post office began operating under new conditions, Parrot replied: "How many people will have to suffer in the meantime? If the problems are resolved now, it will be to the benefit of everybody."

The union is demanding that workers be given a break for 10 minutes every hour and that the work week be reduced to 30 hours.

When pressed to defend the demands, Parrot said management had already agreed to the breaks as necessary for machine operators. "I will not negotiate on TV," he said of the 30-hour week demand.

More direct accountability of management to a newly-formed board of directors in the proposed Crown corporation will improve worker relations and general administration, he predicted.

Replying to a suggestion that the union is militant, he said: "Militant does not mean being irresponsible. You could be militant and at the same time represent a group of postal workers that is ready to play a very positive role in a Crown corporation in order to make it efficient and effective."

Poor productivity is due to the mechanization program of the government. Mail that is rejected by the machine has to be sorted by hand, causing delay, he said.

"The service is bad," he agreed, but blamed "the system that is not working properly."

Parrot urged the post office to seek new revenues in the electronic communications field, as it has in Britain. Otherwise, the post office will only be delivering mail in small communities at high cost.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to move lower amidst uncertainties over the dollar and the general economic outlook.

The announcement by a high official of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries that no decision has been made to meet on oil prices next month, and the planned meeting of President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Premier Menachem Begin on Mideast peace efforts were reassuring news to some analysts.

But in the day's economic news, the dollar dropped to a new low against the West German mark, an one trader said "the long-range trend seems to be a further weakening."

Servomation jumped 10⅝ to $42¼ after GDV Inc. offered $42 a share for the vending machine and restaurant company.

Granisle

Granisle Copper Ltd. reports a net loss of $749,000 or 23 cents a share for the nint months ended June 30, compared with a net profit of $104,000 or three cents a share for the corresponding period last year. Revenue was $14,446,000 compared with $15,873,000. "Copper prices, which had improved slightly since the start of fiscal 1978, continue at sub-economical levels," said president R. P. Taylor. "Copper production was down by 13 per cent in the nine-month period because of the lower grade of ore milled, and the combination of lower copper prices and reduced production resulted in a loss," he added.

Cdn. Merrill

Gross production revenue for the six months ended June 30 increased 21 per cent to $9,481,000 from $8,420,000 for the same period in 1977, Canadian Merrill Ltd. reports. Net earnings after extraordinary items decreased 14.3 per cent to $1,317,000, or 47.9 cents a share, from $1,535,000, or 74 cents a share. The statements include a reduction in current income taxes as an extraordinary item in 1977 for which there is no corresponding item this year, it said.

Revenue in the first six months was $7,438,300 compared with $8,332,353. "Although mortgage markets generally are much more competive, the volume of new loans generated continues to run at prior years' levels, with unfunded commitments standing at a record high," said Arnold H. Jeffrey, president. "Steady growth has been recorded by our new equipment leasing and business term lending division with volume of new business being more than $3 million monthly," he added.

Cda. Permanent

Canada Permanent Trust Co. reports net earnings for the first half of 1978 equal to $1.11 per share, up from $1.09 in the corresponding 1977 period. Hazels Yankee and Fast Times

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

It was sort of a memorable day for a number of reasons at Sandown Harness Raceway Monday.

First and foremost, Hazels Yankee made more news;

Secondly, four winning horses, including Hazels Yankee, achieved their best times ever, and another equalled a previous best;

Thirdly, the mutuel handle was a healthy $109,996, the second highest of the meeting on the 37th day;

And fourthly, Keith Linton didn't have a winner.

Hazels Yankee, of course, was the featured performer.

The seven-year old brown gelding, owned by Svend Olesen of Vancouver, won the Preferred Invitational Handicap at one mile.

And that in itself was a record, for it was Hazels Yankee's fifth victory in a featured event at Sandown, his seventh win of the meeting and 16th of the season. Hazels Yankee's earnings this year now are nearing the $20,000 mark.

Not bad for a pacer which was claimed last year in Calgary for only $2,500.

Oh yes, and Hazels Yankee won in 2:03 1/5, 2/5ths of a second better than his previous best which was Saturday when he finished fourth to Valiant Dauber in that day's feature.

Driven by Bob Boyd, Hazels Yankee returned $5.50, $3.60 and $3.60.

And speaking of best-ever times, Bold Lobo ($3.50) took 2 3/5ths of a second off his previous best with a 2:09 clocking in the first; Mark Kimberly ($16.80) was 3 3/5 seconds quicker than ever before with a 2:05 2/5 time in the fourth; Andys Wayne ($15.10) won the 10th in 2:04 and that was a second better than he had ever done before; and Irish Beth MCal ($19.90) won the sixth in 2:03 3/5 to equal her previous best.

The two-day mutuel total, including Saturday's $106,596, was $216,592, and yet another mark.

The previous best two-day total was the July 1 weekend when bettors pushed $211,000 through the mutuels.

As for Linton, it's news when the leading driver gets shut out.

Driving honors for the day went to Dave Jungquist with three, Mark Baker ($7.70) in the second, Stop Watch ($17.50) in the third and Marc Kimberly in the fourth.

Joe Hudon and Boyd each had two. Hudon had Bold Lobo in the first and Andys Wayne in the finale and Boyd was in the sulky for Klinker Jim ($8.40) in the eighth in addition to winning the feature.

The others to get down in front in a day of many surprises were Mac Galbraith on Over Flo ($24.00) in the fifth; Lorne Clark on Irish Beth McCal and Clarence Gagnon on Mitchs Buch ($9.20) in the seventh.

Racing resumes Wednesday at 5:55 p.m.

Green partnered Eric Hadfield and Mike Belton to a 20-17 decision over Jock McMillan, Syd Smethurst and Bert Edmonds of Burnside to take the triples title.

But, in the fours "B" final, Fred Sallis Sr., Bert Bennett, Bill North and Archie Allardyce edged Green, Hadfield, John Wanstall and Matt Marshall, 19-18.

David Breeden of Gordon Head won the "A" singles event with a 19-13 win over Rollie Mercer of Burnside while Gordon Coughtry of Nanaimo captured "B" laurels with an 18-15 victory over Art Jones of Vancouver.

Tom McKeachie and Chuck Davies of Victoria tripped Axel Nord and Val Reilly of Powell River 21-5 in the pairs final and Nord, Reilly, George Konchak and Ernie Cowie slipped past Ed Fraser, Jock Carpenter, Ron Andrews and Wilf Finch of Lakehill 17-14 in the "A" fours event.

Canadian Swimmers Psych Out Opponents

EDMONTON — The lady's name is Pat Besford. She writes for the London Daily Telegram and in the chlorined and cliquey world of international swim writing she is considered judge, jury and, if necessary, Lady High Executioner.

And she says Canada's swimming team is being rather boorish, don't y'know?

What has her so upset is a new and thus far highly effective weapon conceived by men's coach Don Talbot, written by his wife, Jan, polished by assistant coaches Bill Rose and Paul Savage, and fired by the most spirited bunch of Canadian swimmers ever to grace an international pool: cheerleading.

Since opening day at the Commonwealth Games the Canadians have fired salvo after salvo of cheers at the other teams, running out onto the pool deck during breaks to let the world in general and Australia in particular know that they are tough and cocky and ready to win.

It is harmless stuff, the kind of cheer and response cries you hear at high school meets ("Is that not the swimming pool? "Yes, that is the swimming pool.") and finishes with hands pointing to the Aussies and the question: "Is that not the losing team?" ("Yes, that is the losing team.").

That last question and answer have been amended since opening night to read "Is that not the OTHER team." But it has not satisfied Ms. Besford, several other British journalists, and in some cases the Australians.

"Do you expect to do that at the world championships in Berlin?" she snapped at Talbot. "Because if you do, I want you to know I consider it an example of damn poor sportsmanship. I don't care what you do at your domestic competitions, but people do not behave that way at international competitions."

Talbot's response as she moved away is best condensed. Roughly translated it was: "Pooh on you."

"I saw the Americans come to Montreal with all their cheering and they completely dominated and intimidated our kids. They owned the pool. I was determined that wasn't going to happen here, and it hasn't. This is a group of swimmers who are confident. They are not going to be intimidated by anyone, here or in Berlin. The cheers are part of the way to make sure they're not."

Talbot himself is mystified over the fuss. The cheers are hardly original. The Americans have used them for years. Talbot had the Aussies doing them when he was coaching them in the 1970 Games in Edinburgh. And the cheers are only part of it. The psyching contest is evident everywhere.

When the Australians began climbing to the podium carrying their tiny stuffed koala bears, the Canadians responded by turning up lugging their own stuffed bears — Keyano, the Symbol of the Games — which just happens to be far larger and more fierce looking than the koala. They also wear their huge white stetsons and wave them triumphantly at the crowd.

"This stuff has got the kids up," says women's team coach Dave Johnson. "It's not going to win the meet. The meet will be won or lost in the water. But it helps. The days of Canadian teams being intimidated are over."

While Besford and her colleagues may deplore the Canadian tactics there is no doubt that the home crowd thinks they're just fine. And the attack has had a curious side effect. Suddenly the Australians have cheers of their own. Signs are appearing on the walls — signs raised not only by Canadians and Australians, but by Scotland, New Zealand and, yes, England.

It's not a fight. There are no vendettas, no personalities involved. It's a cheerleading battle between two bunches of kids. And it lends a festive, fun attitude to a competition growing into a two-team dogfight.

And for the Canadians it does serve a purpose, because Talbot is right. Over the years Canadian teams have been intimidated on the pool deck — by the cocksure, ultra-equipped and brassy Americans, and by the quietly awesome East Germans. The new attitude isn't likely to make much difference in Berlin, where the U.S. and East German flashes will be waiting with times that will put some here to shame, but it is definitely a factor here, just as are the medal standings.

You remember the medal standings — those lists that aren't supposed to be kept? These are the Friendly Games, remember. Standings are supposed to be second to competition and fellowship, even more so than in the Olympic Games. Tables aren't to count.

"I don't know who got the idea we shouldn't be counting medals," Johnson said. "The Friendly Games? Sure, we're being friendly. We're going to WIN and be friendly. It's a lot easier that way. Tougher for the others, maybe, but easier for us."

So, if funny cheers and white stetsons and bigger and better stuffed bears will help, then funny cheers and white stetsons and stuffed bears it will be. Win or lose, the kids say the intimidation days are over. And if the London Daily Telegram doesn't like it, pooh on it.

One Slip Fatal In Playoffs

By Canadian Press

After a 30-game regular season, the North American Soccer League moves into its playoffs tonight with 16 of the 24 teams still alive and kicking.

Unlike last season, division winners do not get byes into the second round of the playoffs, so one slip and it could be all over.

"The season is history," said Giorgio Chinaglia, the NASL's leading scorer and top striker for the defending champion Cosmos. "The team had a great record but now the season is long over. It doesn't seem like justice, lose our next game and we're out, but what are you gonna do?"

The Cosmos, a collection of high-priced talent, were expected to repeat as league champions. Anything less would be a disappointment. Expectations are much lower for the Detroit Express, in their first season in the league.

The Express, champion of the American Conference Central Division, plays the Philadelphia Fury tonight at the Pontiac Silverdome. Other action tonight has Chicago at Tampa Bay and California at San Diego.

Delesalle Leading; Rono in a Romp

STRONG PERFORMANCE by Victoria's Philip Delesalle helped Canada to gold medal in gymnastics team competition at Commonwealth Games in Edmonton. (CP Wirephoto).

EDMONTON (CP) — If the water jump was a bit wider, Graham Smith might be a threat to Henry Rono in the 3,000-metre steeplechase.

Rono, the fabulous Kenyan, barely got his feet wet as he toyed with his opposition on the Commonwealth Games track to win the steeplechase Monday while the Edmonton swimmer added two gold medals to his collection in the 200-metre individual medley and the 200-metre breaststroke for a total of four in as many days of competition.

Sharing the spotlight on a busy day that had 21 events completed was Jamaican sprinter Don Quarrie, whose late burst brought him a third successive gold medal in the 100 metres and a chance to complete a third straight sprint double.

The Canadian team, which dominated the medal standings in the early stages of the Games, was encountering increasing resistance from Australia and England. The Canadians had 19 gold medals to the Australians' 12 and England's eight but the Aussies pulled level with the host country in the total medal count with 43 apiece.

Both Australia and Canada picked up five golds during the day. Besides Smith's double victory, Linda Cuthbert of Toronto won the tower diving event with fellow-Torontonian Janet Nutter, the springboard champion, taking the bronze behind Valerie McFarlane of Australia.

Outside the pool, the men's gymnastics team matched the victory by the Canadian women 24 hours earlier and Carmen Ionesco of St. Bruno, Que., won the women's discus as team-mate Lucette Moreau of Montreal took the bronze.

The Australians counter-attacked with three victories in the pool, edging Canada in the men's 4x200-metre freestyle relay and getting two more Games-record performances from Ron McKeon in the men's 400 freestyle and Debbie Foster in the women's 100-metre backstroke.

Helene Boivin of Arvida, Que., and Cheryl Gibson of Edmonton chased Foster to the finish in the breastroke but the Canadians were shut out of the medals in the men's 400 and the women's 200 freestyle, won by Rebecca Perrott of New Zealand.

On the track, Australian domination of the women's 100 metres ended when Sonia Lannaman of England thwarted Raelene Boyle's bid to match Quarrie's achievement in the men's 100 with a third straight victory. It was only the third time in 10 Games that Australia had failed to win the event.

At the half-way mark of the decathlon, Daley Thompson of England had finished first in all five events and appeared to have a chance to break the world record of 8,618 points, held by Olympic champion Bruce Jenner of the United States.

If he makes it, it will be the second world mark to fall at the Games. Tracey Wickham of Australia chopped nearly six seconds off her own record in the 800-metre freestyle Saturday night.

The eyes of a gold medal-winning women's team were upon them, and Canada's male gymnasts, sparked by the performance of Victoria's Philip Delesalle, responded with some gold of their own Monday night.

Delesalle was the leading individual competitor with 57.50 points. Other members of the Canadian team were Nigel Rothwell of Windsor, Ont., Jean Choquette of Montreal and Owen Walstrom, also of Victoria.

"Philip was close to a 9.6 average tonight," coach Rene Simard said of Delesalle. "I'm very pleased. This is the first time since 1975 that he's hit on six events at once."

Neale was England's leading performer and second to Delesalle in the individual standings. Lindsay Nylund of Australia was third. Rothwell, a native of Romford, England, was the second-best Canadian, in fifth place, while Choquette finished sixth and Walstrom ninth.

Delesalle, 21, turned in the top showings in four movements—the pommel horse, still rings, parallel bars and horizontal bars—while Jeffrey Davis of England was the leader in the floor exercise and Lambert Ariens of Australia had the best score in the horse vault.

"I think I did better than I really hoped," said Delesalle, who has won three consecutive Canadian senior men's championships. "I was hitting routines I had been missing in practice."

Delesalle said a bone chip in his right wrist, suffered a year ago in Spain, had caused him some pain.

"If I want no pain I guess I'll have to have an operation eventually, but they told me it would be six months before I could get back into it. Maybe I'll have an operation after the world championships in Strasbourg, France, in October."

While Delesalle claimed a medal, there was none for Debbie Scott. The Victoria miss finished ninth in the 3,000-metre race and was abviously disappointed with her performance on the track.

Games Trip Gives Irish Time to Think It Over

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria Shamrocks are off to the Commonwealth games in Edmonton, Wednesday, but what promised to be a happy trip is almost a disaster before take-off.

Scheduled to meet Nanaimo Timbermen in a two-game exhibition series, Thursday and Friday, Shamrocks weren't smiling when they went home to pack Monday night.

And for good reason, and a continuing story.

Vancouver Burrards refused to knuckle under to the Shamrocks in the third game of their Western Lacrosse Association semifinal series at Memorial Arena and shocked a demoralized league championship team 12-10 to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Shamrocks, winners of the opener here 20-7, and losers of the second game in Vancouver 10-8, came out running and gunning in this one, grabbed what appeared to be a commanding lead, but then petered out in the real playing that followed.

Trailing 5-1 at the 17:30 mark of the first period just after Norm Baker had fired a power-play goal, and with their No. 1 goalkeeper and the Shamrocks' nemesis, Dave Evans, on the bench in favor of Brad Berrow, Burrards seemed ripe for the taking.

But no! This was a Mann Cup championship club in action and the Irish soon knew they were in a battle as they had been in other years.

Doug Hayes started the Burrard resurgence.

He scored one goal before the end of the period and then two more at the start of the second period; and, when Rico Bellusci blasted home another counter at 4:46 of the second period, Burrards were even at 5-5.

Shamrocks bounced back with three straight goals and hope was supreme again. Rick Baker got a power-play goal and then Ranjit Dillon scored a pair a little over a minute apart and the Irish were on top 8-5.

But Burrards weren't through. Pat Ryan scored on a power play, Taki Vohalis got his first of two and Ron Pinder fired a screen shot past goalie Larry Smeltzer of the Rocks and the score was tied 8-8.

Veteran Ivan Thompson put the Irish ahead for what was to be the last time at 18:41 of the second, and the Irish led 9-8 entering the third period.

Ryan, with his second power-play goal, tied the score and then the much despised Ward Sanderson slipped a soft bounce shot past Smeltzer to give Burrards the lead.

Give Thompson credit, he got the Rocks on even terms again at 10:17 but after that Burrards took control.

Bill Rawson scored the winner at 11:02 and Vohalis the clincher at 19:10.

For Berrow it was an outstanding display after replacing Evans; and for Burrards who, for the last three years have eliminated the Shamrocks in post-season play, it was a classic display of a veteran team that refused to panic and, more to the point, blanked the Shamrocks' leading scorer Ron MacNeil, limiting him to two assists.

For the Shamrocks, it was the opposite as they failed to muster a rally in face of the Burrard comeback.

But perhaps Thompson, who got four goals to lead the Irish attack, summed it up best after the game when he said:

"Yeah, now we're off to Edmonton to get this Commonwealth Games nonsense out of the way. Then maybe we can start playing lacrosse."

Hayes led Burrards with three goals and two assists. Vohalis and Ryan each had two goals with singles going to Erik Otterstrom, Rawson, Sanderson, Bellusci and Pinder.

Dave Thomson and Dillon each had two for the Rocks while Norm and Rick Baker had singles.

Fourth game of the series will be played in Vancouver, Tuesday, Aug. 15, with the fifth game here on Wednesday, Aug. 16.

WLA commisioner Roy Burton announced that he had levied "a substantial fine" against Bob Holmes of Burrards for his attack on Shamrocks' trainer Dave Swanbeck after the first game here last Wednesday.

It is expected that parts of the Friday game between the Shamrocks and Timbermen in Edmonton will be televised.

Victoria Oarsmen Win Gold Medals

MONTREAL — Victoria City Rowing Club competitors came up with four gold medals and won a special international event in the Canadian rowing championshiops which ended here Monday.

Bruce Ford came up with three victories.

He edged Phil Moncton of Ridley Boat Club by about a foot to win the elite singles; partnered Patrick Walter to victory in the elite doubles over Moncton and Brian Elliott of Ridley, who recently finished fifth in the world youth championships; and shared a win with Walter over Cuba in a special international doubles event.

John Alexander trailed the field for most of the race and then sprinted the final 200 yards to win the lightweight singles title.

Kathleen Alexander, Cheryl Mason, Janice Mason, Lisa Roy and cox Kim Willoughby recorded the other victory in the women's quad.

In addition, the Victoria club picked up two seconds. Alexander, Ford, Walter and Ken McRae were runners-up to Cuba in the open men's quad and Janice Mason and Roy finished second to Burnaby Lake Aquatic Club in women's doubles.

The Victoria squad, accompanied by coach Lief Gotfredson, now goes on to St. Catherines, Ont., where they'll compete in the Royal Canadian Henley Regatta next week.

Hill's Had Enough

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Washington Redskins running back Calvin Hill, indicating he had lost some of his enthusiasm for the game, has decided to retire from the National Football League after nine seasons.

CITY'S ALL-STARS CAPTURE B.C. TITLE

QUESNEL — Victoria Senior Amateur League All-Stars won the British Columbia senior baseball championship here Monday, beating Nanaimo 19-8 in the final of a three-day tournament.

Gary Brooke and Mike Laffin hit home runs to lead Victoria batting and Rick Cook picked up the pitching victory.

The final was an extra game forced when the Hub City crew edged previously-unbeaten Victoria 13-12 in 10 innings earlier in the day.

Victoria opened with a 5-1 decision over Enderby on Saturday and tripped Bulkley Valley 5-2 Sunday.

Bulkley Valley finished third and Prince George placed fourth in the six-team tournament.

Gary Yakalashek of Nanaimo hit three home runs in the tournament and was selected most valuable player.

Victoria now advances to the Western Canada championship starting Aug. 24 in Nanaimo against the host team and Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba representatives.

Cordova Bay Claims Crown

Cordova Bay completed an unbeaten skein by tripping Camp Two of Clearwater 5-1 Monday in the final of the British Columbia juvenile boys' softball championship tournament at Lochside Park.

Wayne Phillips, backed by what one club spokesman termed "a complete team effort," picked up the pitching decision by striking out six batters and allowing only two hits and one walk. He had a no-hitter going until the top of the sixth inning and yielded a hit in each of the last two frames.

Cordova Bay opened the nine-team, double-loss elimination tourney with a 7-1 win over Surrey Sooners on Saturday and advanced to the final with a 7-3 decision over Vancouver Magicians and a 6-4 victory over Strawberry Vale, the other Victoria entry, on Sunday.

Camp Two reached the final by eliminating Strawberry Vale 9-4 earlier Monday.

Other teams in the tourney were Rainbow Lanes of Port Alberni, Vanderhoof Chronicals, Pine Grove of Abbotsford and Ladner Fishermen.

Meanwhile, Harvey's Sporting Goods of the Sidney Association scored two unanswered runs in the seventh inning to edge Capital Builders of the host league 10-9 and win the Heywood Men's League tournament at Heywood Avenue Park.

Perry Ethier, Terry Orr, Don Orr and Don Norbury cracked home runs for Harvey's while Vic Gee and Barry Milne tagged four-baggers for Capital.

Terry Orr won the most valuable player award in the six-team, double-loss elimination tourney while Bob Richdale of Capital collected pitching laurels and Al Mann of Capital took batting honors.

Harveys supplied four players — Terry Orr, Ethier, Wayne Hannan and Dick Michaud — to the all-star team. Rounding out the squad were Gee and Mann of Capital, Don O'Keefe and Garnet McDonald of Wright's Jewellers (Duncan) and Glen Wallis of Elks (Stuffy McGinnis League).

At Sooke Athletic Park, Sooke Merchants won their own 13-team, double-loss elimination tourney with a 5-2 decision over Nanaimo Tally-Ho in the final.

Campbell River finished third and IWA Credit Union of Vancouver placed fourth.

Lawrie Garrett of Tally-Ho was named the MVP, Mel Nelson of Sooke won pitching honors and Craig Pickerell of Longhouse (Nanaimo) picked up batting laurels with a .500 average.

Five players — Rod Nyberg, Ron Fedosenko, Chris Carolan, Bob Wilson and Wayne Stolth — were picked from Sooke for the all-stars. Others named to the team were Tom Denton and Rob Obans of Tally-Ho, Terry Strandlund of Bateson's Karate School, Don Haggard of Hay's Roofing (Port Alberni) and Jim Anderson of Port Angeles.

Homers Hurt Mussels

It was great while it lasted for Victoria Mussels.

After chalking up two straight Northwest Baseball League triumphs over the Bucksins at Boise, Iadaho, the Mussels were unwilling victims of Emil Drzayich's bat Monday.

Drzayich blasted a two-run homer and a run-scoring single to lead the Buckskins to an 8-5 triumph, enabling Boise newcomer Bill Davidson to collect his first pitching win of the season.

On Sunday, Victoria pitcher Dale Mohorcic retired the first 13 batters he faced and the Mussels romped to an 8-0 victory.

Relief pitcher Roy Moretti was Victoria's Saturday hero, squashing a ninth-inning Boise rally to rescue a 7-5 triumph for the Mussels.

Moretti came back as a starter Monday and had his problems compounded by several failures of Victoria batters to connect with runners in scoring position, including a bases-loaded situation in the first inning.

In addition to Drzayich, Buckskin slugger Dan Thomas also drilled a long-range shot off Moretti pitching, taking over the league home-run lead with his 10th of the season, a bases-empty blast in the second inning.

Boise's Mike Price lined a single up the middle with one out in the fifth Sunday to break up Mohorcic's no-hit bid, and designated-hitter Danny Thomas doubled in the seventh for the only other Boise hit.

Raymie Odermott matched pitches with Mohorcic until the seventh when Victoria exploded for four runs on three bunt hits, a passed ball, a bases-loaded walk and Mike Carey's single.

In Saturday's game, Paul Kirsch hit a two-run double in the sixth and added a run-scoring single in the eighth to lead the Victoria hitters.

Boise loaded the bases with no outs in the bottom of the ninth. Moretti entered the game, struck out the first two hitters he faced, and forced the third to ground out, saving the victory for Steve Cheadle.

Mussels continue their road trip tonight at Bend, Ore., as they open a three-game series against the Timber Hawks, who moved within one game of the Norther Division lead with an 11-9 triumph Monday over Bellingham Mariners.

Cec Settles For Second

SASKATOON (CP) — Roger Klatt of St. Albert, Alta., starting the day with a two-stroke lead, held off the persistent challenge of Victoria's Cec Ferguson to win the Saskatchewan Open golf championship by one stroke Sunday.

Klatt carded a two-over-par 74 to finish the 54-hole event at 211, five under par, to record his first victory in a major professional tournament.

Ferguson of Victoria, who led after the first round when he shot a record 65 on the Riverside Country Club, shot a 73 in the final round and finished with 212.

Klatt won $4,000, while Ferguson took home $2,300.

A brilliant recovery on the 16th hole saved the tournament for Klatt. Ten yards deep in some trees, Klatt pulled off a great shot of about 155 yards to wind up on the green. He just missed his birdie putt but happily settled for a par that kept him in front of Ferguson.

"That was the key shot," Klatt said.

Ferguson, 28, and a second-year pro, also had his ups and downs in the final round. He double-bogeyed the 298-yard 12th when he went for the green with his tee shot and landed in the trees. But he picked up three strokes on the 14th and 15th holes and almost sank a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Jim Rutledge, 18, of Victoria, the 1977 Canadian junior champion, finished in a tie for third place with a final round 69 for a two-under 214 total to win his first big pro cheque - one worth $1,350.

He tied with Bob Panasiuk of Windsor and Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., both former Saskatchewan Open winners.

Two other Victorians also got into the money. Southpaw Bob Beauchemin and John Morgan both finished with 219 totals to pocket $175.

Barbells Get Lift from Pickup

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Ty Stofflet and Larry Bergh did their jobs. So did the hitters in the Reading, Pa., Barbells' lineup.

But if you want another reason the defending United States men's softball champions swept a four-game exhibition "super series" from Victoria Budgets, the Canadian titleholders, then try Tim Norton.

Outwardly, Norton's contributions to Reading's victories (2-0 and 1-0 before 2,058 fans on Saturday, 8-4 and 4-1 before Sunday's turnout of 1,314 fans) didn't seem significant. He caught three of the four games and managed only one single in nine trips to the plate.

Quietly, however, Victoria manager Jack Bell suggests Norton "did a good job on us."

Reading manager Rocco Santilli picked up Norton, a veteran with the Longview (Wash.) Boondocks, on the way to Victoria.

"Norton knows our batters," said Bell, "and I think he was a great help to Stofflet and Bergh."

And if anyone does not need an extra edge, he would be Stofflet or Bergh. Among the better throwers in the game, they seemed to throw the right pitches at the right time, especially tantalizing changeups, to spark Reading's sweep.

The brilliant Stofflet, who well may be No. 1 in the U.S., won his 31st and 32nd straight decisions this season to run his two-year undefeated record to 68-0. The record doesn't awe Stofflet, who thought it may be 30-0 this year. Reading statician John Reddy, however, says Ty now has won 32.

Apart from the pitching and Norton, the other difference in the series went to Barbells' batting. Bob Yoder, 250-pound Jeff Seip, Rich Gruber, Jody Koch and, yeah, even Stofflet, give Stantilli exceptional power.

Seip clouted succssive homers in Sunday's series finale to account for three of Barbells' four runs. He also drove in two runs in the 8-4 victory with a pair of towering sacrifice flies in addition to banging out two doubles and a single Saturday.

Gruber, who led Reading with seven hits, drove in all three runs Saturday night and finished the series with five straight safeties Sunday.

Stofflet and Yoder both had three hits while Koch connected for a home run and a double.

Santilli feels his offense if "infinitely stronger" than it was two years ago when Reading, Victoria and New Zealand's national team wound up sharing the world's championship after the rain-curtailed tournament in 1976.

Budget field boss Harvey Stevenson isn't so sure.

While admitting the Barbells are "an excellent team," Stevenson also feels Budgets weren't at their best in the Royal Athletic Park series.

"We give them all three runs Saturday," he said, referring to fielding and mental errors that did open the door. "And I don't think our hitting and pitching was as sharp as it can be."

"(Stan) Kern and (Andy) Konopacki pitched well enough to win Saturday's games but we just didn't give them any runs."

And exception in the hitting department was centre fielder Reg Underwood, who accounted for six of Victoria's 15 hits. Dave Williams and Bob Holness both had hree hits, but the rest of the lineup remaining disappointingly silent.

Budgets have one more "super series," meeting Portland Raybestos at Royal Athletic Park next weekend, before concentrating on the provincial tournament here the following weekend.

Ballesteros Posts Second Straight Win

Times News Services

Severiano Ballesteros of Spain clinched the Scandianavian Open golf championship Sunday in Helsingborg, Sweden, with a three-under-par 69 for a four-round total of 279.

Ballesteros, who won the West Germany Open a week ago, finished one stroke ahead of South Africa's Dale Hayes, who shot a 70 Sunday, and two better than third place Bernard Gallacher of Britain, who also closed with a 70.

Also in golf. . .

Toronto professional George Knudson won the second annual Digby Pines Open at Digby, N.S., by carding a five-under-par 137 in the two-day event. Knudson shot a seven-under-par 64 Saturday and a 73 Sunday to win $2,000.

Graham MacIntyre of Halifax topped the amateurs with 66-72—139 while tying Jay Dolan of Massachusetts for second place overall.

And in Quebec City, Yves Tremblay of Sorel won the Quebec amateur championship for the second year in a row with a 54-hole total of 212 and a two-stroke victory margin over Jean-Louis Lamarre of Candiac, Que.

The victory by the 20-year-old Tremblay marked the fifth year in a row that a University of Indiana player has won the Quebec amateur. Robbie Jackson of Montreal, another Indiana student, was the winner in 1974, 1975 and 1976.

Eighth Triumph For Nancy Lopez

SUNNINGDALE, England (AP) — Nancy Lopez, the 1978 sensation on the women's golf tour, won the European Open championship Sunday by firing a final-round 73 for a 289 total, seven-under-par, for her eighth triumph this year.

Sally Little of South Africa, who led for the first two rounds, and Americans JoAnne Carner and Mary Dwyer finished three strokes behind with 292.

Lopez, from Roswell, N.M., earned $15,000 and moved ahead of Judy Rankin's women's record of winning $150,734 in a single season.

Lopez's game had turned mediocre since winning a tournament in June, but on Sunningdale's 6,174-yard, par 74 course she displayed her old form. "My confidence is right back," she said later. "I was really pumped up here."

Dwyer's 68 was the best round of the tournament and included seven birdies and just one bogey. But her Sunday round followed two par rounds of 74 and a 76.

Sandra Post, a native of Oakville, Ont., had a fourth round 77 for a 307 total to win $625.

Sibley Resigns Queen's Park Post

LONDON (AP) — Frank Sibley, 30, the youngest soccer manager in the English League's first division, has resigned from Queen's Park Rangers.

Sibley, who had been in charge of the London club for just one season and had controversially tried to change the team's continental style of play, said he made his decision for family reasons.

Gardiner and Leiss Win Masters Titles

Times News Services

Alvin Gardiner of Australia played conservative tennis to defeat Richard LeGendre of Quebec City 7-5, 6-4 Sunday and win the $25,000 American Express Masters tennis tournament at Montreal.

The third-seeded Gardiner was only occasionally jeopardized by the aggressive LeGendre in the concluding tournament of the 1978 Canadian Challengers Circuit.

Of the six Challengers events, Gardiner won the Atlantic Open in addition to the Masters.

In women's singles, top-seeded Zenda Liess of Daytona Beach, Fla., easily defeated an injured Kym Ruddell of Melbourne, 6-1, 6-2. On Saturday, Ruddell pulled a stomach muscle in her semi-final victory over Aleida Spex of Miami.

Liess won four of the five other Challengers tournaments—the British Columbia Open, the Prairie Open, the Ontario Open and the Quebec Open.

In women's doubles, Ruddell returned with her partner Lise Senn of Toronto but lost the final, this time to second-seeded Leslie Allen of New York and Spex, who won 6-2, 6-4.

In men's doubles, the top-seeded team of Bruce Kleege of La Jolla, Calif., and Joe Garcia of Koxville, Tenn., started slowly but came on to defeat Brad Coleman of Garland, Tex., and Len Holroyd of Phoenix, 6-7, 6-3, 6-4.

At South Orange, N.J., Monday, Guillermo Vilas easily captured an all-Argentine final Monday in a $75,000 Grand Prix tournament, beating Jose-Luis Clerc 6-1, 6-3.

Vilas, the defending champion, collected $15,000.

Top-seeded Roscoe Tanner came on with with a flurry in last two games of a tough second set at New Orleans Sunday, taking eight straight points to defeat number-five seed Vic Amaya 6-3, 7-5 for top money in another $75,000 Grand Prix event.

In doubles, Erik Van Dillen and Dick Stockton spoiled Brian Fairlie's last professional tennis match. Fairlie, a 30-year-old Australian, retired with this tournament, gained the doubles final with Ismail El Shafei of Egypt, but lost the final 7-6, 6-3.

LATE FAKE SPOILS DOLPHINS' OPENER

SURREY — Victoria Dolphins had control most of the game but dropped a narrow 7-6 decision to Surrey Rams in the opening game of the British Columbia Big Four Junior Football League Sunday.

Dolphins, playing an extremely disciplined game compared to past seasons, were ahead 6-0 with about two minutes to go in the fourth quarter when a fake kick from Jim Booth to Kevin Taylor gave Rams a 75-yard converted touchdown and the victory.

Al Pedersen set the scoring pace for Dolphins with a 22-yard field goal at 11:06 of the fourth quarter and a single on a missed field goal in the third quarter. Bob McGeachie accounted for the other Victoria points with punt singles.

The Victoria offence was particularly strong with Dave Fletcher, who played for UBC Thunderbirds last season, running 28 times for 152 yards. Fletcher also caught two passes for a total of 21 yards. Kym Clarke ran 11 times for a total gain of 100 yards and McGeachie caught three passes for 57 yards.

Quarterbacks Bernie Kidd and Charlie Gray completed five out of eight and two out of seven passes, respectively.

Dolphins play their first game on Vancouver Island on Aug. 20, when they play host to Renfrew Trojans at Duncan's McAdam Park.

Oak Bay Impresses

Oak Bay tripped Nanaimo by 10 wickets in Victoria and District Cricket Association action Saturday at Windsor Park.

In other league play, Castaways scored a narrow victory over Incogs at Beacon Hill Park and Saanich and Alcos struggled to a draw at the University of Victoria.

Kortwright Richards sparked the Oak Bay triumph by taking five wickets for the loss of only 13 runs as Nanaimo was held to 37 runs. Eric Richards helped the bowling with a two-for-nine performance and Peter Russell took one-for-nine.

Oak Bay then counted 37, not out, behind the batting of Dave Billimgham (15 runs) and Ken Aziz (13).

Dave Shaw scored 47 runs and Alex Porter contributed 37, not out, as Castaways scored 160 for five. Dave Gladders of Incogs took three for 57.

Incogs, in turn, managed 158 for seven with Eric Kjekstad counting 69 and Gladders scoring 39, not out.

Saanich took first knock and chalked up 62 for nine with Tony England and Peter Howe scoring 19 runs each. Bob McKay led Alco bowlers with four for 13.

Alcos, which came up with 188 for four declared, collected 75 runs from Peter Nation and 60 from John Schofield. Mark Lipscombe of Saanich downed two for 34.

PGA Crown Climaxes Mahaffey's Comeback

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — His two sudden-death foes, remembering how John Mahaffey's personal life and golf game once fell apart, wished him well after he put it all together Sunday to win the PGA championship.

"I don't feel bad because you really don't know how much John deserves to win," Jerry Pate told reporters after Mahaffey holed a decisive 12-foot birdie putt on the second extra hole. "I'm really happy for John," echoed Tom Watson, who led by seven strokes early in the final round only to be overtaken by the onrushing Pate and Mahaffey.

"John and I used to talk about winning a major championship and he did it in style. He went out there and beat the golf course. He beat me. And he beat Jerry Pate."

It was in 1975 that Mahaffey, winner of over $300,000 in three years, lost to Lou Graham in a U.S. Open playoff. The next year, Mahaffey held a cozy lead into the final nine holes of the Open but was beaten by Pate's birdie on the final hole.

Disaster followed for Mahaffey. He hurt his elbow on a swing, broke his hand in a fall from a ladder, divorced his first wife, and became a problem drinker.

"John hasn't played well since I won the Open," said Pate, a 24-year-old native of Macon, Ga., who could have won it all Sunday by sinking a four-foot putt that squirted out on the 18th hole.

"I'm really happy for him today. This just doesn't turn a guy's career around. It turns his life around. It's going to be great for him."

It was then that Mahaffey stepped into the press tent, accompanied by a PGA entourage and his new wife, Susie, who was toting an armful of yellow roses.

"It's been a long road back," said Mahaffey, who went from three to eight strokes under par with his final-round 66 Sunday. "There's been a lot of disappointments. But I'll tell you one thing. This makes up for every bit of that."

Groth Grabs Medal Honors

The North West Seniors' Golf Association will declare a new championship this year.

Defending champ Erv Parent of Seattle was the major casualty when the 56th annual tournament got under way Monday with the qualifying round at Victoria Golf Club.

Parent, who took a disastrous nine on one hole, scored a 79 to miss qualifying for the championship by one stroke.

Scores of 78 or better were needed and even a 78 was no assurance. Three golfers — Victoria captain Jake Peters, former Island Open champion Bill McColl and W. Triplett of Seattle were drawn out.

Arnold Groth of Seattle, scoring a one-under 70, captured medallist honors and faced Ray Cranston of Victoria in today's first round of match play. The tournament winds up Friday.

Six Victorians were among the successful 16. They were Gord Millin, Vic Painter, Cranston, former champions Bill Thompson and George Bigelow and Gordon Verley.

It was a close call for Verley, who scored three-under 68 in the international Canada-U.S. team match the previous day but added 10 shots to that score in the qualifying round.

The U.S. team defeated Canada for the second straight year, 5½-4½, in the team match.

The championship qualifiers:

Arnold Groth (Sea)	70
C.H. Weston, Jr. (Port)	71
Gord Millin (RC)	74
Bill Thompson (Vic)	74
Vic Painter (RC)	74
Keith Welts (Sea)	75
Kelly Waller (Sea)	75

NORTH VANCOUVER — Whalley capped an unbeaten march with a narrow 1-0 win over defending champion Trail Monday to capture the British Columbia Little League baseball championship.

Whalley now advances to the Canadian final starting Saturday in Windsor, Ont.

Trail came back through the losers' bracket to face Whalley by eliminating Lakehill of Victoria 19-9 Saturday and ousting Little Mountain of Vancouver 11-4 Sunday.

In the win over Lakehill, Trail packed 10 runs into the first inning and then added eight more in the third frame.

Ker, Miller Race To Victory

Orton Ker survived an early mishap and went on to win the 25-lap main event for super-stocks while Al Miller had relatively little trouble winning the stock car feature over the same distance during the Captain Cook Bicentennial Road Race held Monday on the one-mile road circuit at Western Speedway.

A total of 1,834 fans turned out in the blistering heat to watch the drivers from both classes compete for the first time in a Vancouver Island Track Racing Association-sanctioned event on the road course.

Ker started at the front of the 16-car field with Gary Bemister and took the lead almost immediately going into the bridge. He held the front-running position until the 17th lap when he tangled with Bemister coming out of the hairpin turn. After the bump, Bemister took the lead and Ker lost about a third of a lap but Bemister was forced to drop out on the next lap when he blew the rear end of his vehicle.

Ker, who also won the fast heat, regained the lead by passing Larry Pollard on the 20th lap and managed to stay in front the rest of the way.

Jim Caudwell became one of the eight drivers out of 16 who didn't finish the race when he crashed on the backstretch. He emerged uninjured but his car was badly damaged.

Ian Hardisty started in the pole position in the stock car main and was the early leader but Miller took over the lead on the third lap and was never headed. Stock car points leader Gordie Stone had to start in the middle of the pack and did some exceptional driving to make up ground before spinning out and retiring with mechanical problems midway through the race in which 16 out of 25 starters finished.

Caudwell clocked the fastest lap during practice and time trials on Sunday, touring the one mile course in 38.96 seconds. Dave Morris was the fastest stock car driver with a time of 42.96.

On Saturday, Stone picked up his sixth main event win of the year during a stock car program watched by 1,572 fans.

Stone took the lead on the 13th of 35 laps and finished well ahead of runner-up Pat Philips.

Ontario's Reign Ended by Quebec

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quebec defeated Ontario by two wickets in the final round Saturday of the national cricket tournament, ending Ontario's 11-year reign as Canadian champion.

Quebec finished the tournament with 36 points, with B.C. and Ontario tied for second with 24, followed by Manitoba with 12, Nova Scotia with six, and Saskatchewan with nil.

In a closely-contested match, Quebec's fast-bowling combination of Robert Callender and John Corbin displayed batting prowess to get the team out of a difficult situation.

Cecil Marshall played a valuable inning of 76 for Ontario. The only other batsman to get going was John Vaughan, who made 34.

Quebec spinner Marshall De Souza, who played well throughout the tournament, once again was the most outstanding bowler, taking five wickets for 51 runs.

The Ontario spin attack failed to penetrate the defences of the Quebec middle-order batting, and Callender, Corbin, and Peter Fredericks, were able to guide the side to the title.

Queen Awards Medal, Jets Home

EDMONTON (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and his three young sons joined a crowd of thousands Sunday in sending off Queen Elizabeth after her 12-day Canadian tour.

The Queen and 14-year-old Prince Edward, clutching a camera, left by jet for the United Kingdom. Prince Philip and 18-year-old Prince Andrew are in B.C., returning to Edmonton later this week to watch the remainder of the Commonwealth Games.

At the airport at Canadian Forces Base Namao, an armed forces officer was roped into babysitting the three fidgeting Trudeau boys while the prime minister escorted the Queen down a red carpet toward her waiting plane.

A number of small children ran out of the crowd to present flowers to the Queen, who had cancelled one of her scheduled events earlier Sunday to rest for the long trip home.

However, she did spare an hour before leaving to take in several track events at the Commonwealth stadium, where she presented a gold medal to pentathalon winner Diane Jones-Konihowski, the Canadian athlete who ran through the stadium to present her with a baton at the opening ceremony Thursday.

Saturday night, the Queen attended a glittering state dinner as the guest of Trudeau, who told her Canada must move ahead and "our task is nothing less than a renewal of the Canadian federation."

The Queen replied that the spirit of renewal, evident throughout the land, "is proof that the desire for cooperation and understanding is as alive in Canada today as it ever was."

She added the warning: "Renewal implies a movement beyond the frontiers of current and past experience and can therfore be fraught with difficulty."

After the stiffly-formal state dinner, Trudeau and Andrew were struck by Saturday night fever and the prime minister took his young guest to a downtown discotheque where they danced until past midnight.

The tour, which started July 26 in St. John's, Nfld., was Prince Edward's first lengthy official role as a member of the Royal Family.

He carried it off with aplomb and with his dashing older brother, Andrew, left a trail of admiring girls wherever he went.

Four young Canadian gymnasts who met the Royal Family at a reception Friday said it was far more nerve-wracking to meet a prince than it was to perform before thousands.

The girls, nervous and jittery after their meeting with royalty Friday, were poised and confident Sunday as they performed their gymnastic routines and won a team gold medal for Canada.

The tour concentrated on visits to small towns and everywhere the Royal Family went there was a friendly welcome. The only visible protest was in Saskatoon, where a man stood silently at the airport with a sign reading: "Abolish the monarchy."

The Queen and Prince Philip spent three days in Newfoundland before moving to Saskatchewan and Alberta. They took luxury train trips in both provinces, with a number of small-town whistle stops.

Trudeau told the Queen Saturday night: "You do more than honor us by your frequent journeys throughout Canada. You also give us the very real pleasure of your company and provide us with a most outstanding example of selfless dedication to the responsibilities of office and to the well-being of your people.

"In a world where men and women are too often tempted to close in upon themselves on islands of isolation, you have always shown us that there is a better and nobler way to live."

Trade Ban

BANGKOK (AP) — Thailand has imposed a ban on all trade with South Africa. The commerce ministry in signing two orders imposing the ban, gave no reasons for the action. Copies of the orders were made available Sunday. A number of countries have placed embargoes on trade with South Africa to protest its apartheid policies.

Bans Lifted In Rhodesia

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Rhodesia today abolished discrimination against blacks in public places, including hotels, restaurants, bars, theatres and movie houses.

But a long-awaited statement from the governing executive council made no mention of ending segregation in schools, hospitals and residential areas.

The statement followed demands by black nationalists for an immediate end to all discrimination as a vital step in establishing the credibility of Rhodesia's interim government in the eyes of the outside world and blacks at home.

The executive council—made up of white Prime Minister Ian Smith and black nationalist leaders Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole and Chief Jeremiah Chirau—promised in the statement that more action will be taken until all discrimination is ended.

"I am very, very pleased," Bishop Muzorewa said later. "I am definitely satisfied. One of the greatest things that has happened to our country is now happening."

"All public places such as hotels, restaurants, cafes, beerhalls, swimming baths, cinemas, theatres and other public places will be open to persons of all races," it said.

Owners can continue to refuse admission but not on grounds of race or color, it said.

Trading and industrial areas will also be open to all, the statement said, and local authorities will no longer be allowed to provide "separate facilities" for the races. This apparently referred to lavatories and other municipal facilities.

A-BOMB VICTIMS REMEMBERED

TOKYO (AP) — At 8:15 a.m. Sunday in Hiroshima's Peace Park, 33 years to the minute after the terrifying flash, roar and mushroom cloud of the first atomic bomb used in war, the only sound was the tolling of the Peace Bell.

Shizuo Okuda, 35, and Takako Torii, 34, representatives of bereaved families, tolled the bell as about 40,000 persons observed a minute of silence in hopes for "no more Hiroshimas."

The total number of names on a memorial scroll in the park now is 93,595, with the addition of 2,179 recently identified victims of the U.S. attack in the Second World War that flattened the industrial and transport centre.

Japanese authorities said 69 persons designated as atomic bomb victims died in the last year and many others still are suffering from radiation after-effects.

Idi Plans Attack On Mercenaries

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Uganda President Idi Amin said today he was mobilizing an invasion force from several non-aligned countries to attack a tiny group of Indian Ocean islands, the Comoros, and overthrow its "mercenary government."

In a statement broadcast by Radio Uganda, Amin threatened to unleash the invasion "by land and air" unless the mercenaries cleared off the group of four islands located midway between mainland Africa and the island of Madagascar.

A group of some 50 European mercenaries headed by a Belgian soldier of fortune, Bob Denard, reportedly spearheaded this year's May 13 coup that toppled the regime of Ali Soilih who was subsequently shot dead while "trying to escape."

World Mourns Death Of Pope Paul VI

day attended by religious and political leaders from many countries. Burial will be in the crypt beneath St. Peter's.

A nine-day mourning period will follow, with a cardinal or other high-ranking prelate saying a special mass in St. Peter's daily.

Meanwhile, leaders of a divided world temporarily put aside their differences to pay tribute to the man who tried to bring their countries and peoples together.

Words of sorrow and praise for Pope Paul VI came from East and West, from Communists and capitalists, from religious leaders and secular ones. Flags in many countries flew at half-mast in mourning for the Pope, who died Sunday night at the age of 80. Memorial masses were scheduled around the world.

The Pope, who headed the 550 million-member Roman Catholic Church for just over 15 years, was eulogized as "a pioneer for church unity," "a tireless voice of human conscience" and a "Prince of Peace."

Canadian Prime Minister Trudeau said the Pope's death will be mourned not only by Roman Catholics, but by "all men and women who appreciate the value of wise moral leadership in our time."

Premier Bill Bennett sent a telegram of condolence Monday to the Most Reverend Angelo Palmas, the Vatican's representative in Ottawa.

"The world has lost a spiritual and moral leader whose dignity and quiet strength will always be remembered," the telegram said. "With the untimely death of Pope Paul the world has lost one of its strongest forces for peace.

"His meetings with world leaders, part of his constant search for peace, contributed immensely to greater understanding between nations--an understanding which we earnestly pray will ultimately lead to enduring peace."

The Soviet newspaper Izvestia, in an article by its correspondent in Rome, said the Pope "did a lot for normalization of relations with Socialist countries" and "declared many times in favor of consolidating universal peace, lessening international tensions, achieving disarmament."

U.S. President Carter said earlier that Pope Paul was "a source of great moral inspiration . . . carrying the message of peace and love to the far corners of the world."

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat praised the Pope for his efforts to "lay down the foundation for peaceful coexistence between nations." In a message broadcast over Cairo radio, Sadat said he and his country had "lost a personal friend who exerted positive and effective efforts for reaching a genuine peace in the Middle East . . . ."

Requiem masses were being said in Catholic churches all over the world. Other Christians held prayer services in several couuntries in tribute to Pope Paul's work for unity among the separated churches.

Trudeau's Proposals Knocked

REGINA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's two-stage constitutional proposals appeared in for a rough ride from the provinces as provincial ministers responsible for constitutional affairs began a one-day meeting today.

"The two-stage approach is not acceptable to most provinces, if any," said Newfoundland Attorney-General Alex Hickman.

The provincial inter-governmental affairs ministers, joined by some attorneys-general, are setting the stage for the 19th annual premiers conference which starts Wednesday at the suburban campus of the University of Regina.

Tiny Decline in Jobless

In July, 1977, there were 878,000 jobless and a seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate of 7.9 per cent.

Many economists are predicting that unemployment will grow worse later this fall and winter.

Prime Minister Trudeau cited lack of jobs as a major reason for developing an economic recovery plan that he is to make public in coming weeks. He said last week that too many young people are jobless and business investment in new production operations is weak.

The federal cabinet meets this week to start planning how to stimulate the economy.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, said Trudeau should recall Parliament early in September to start work on short-run measures to create jobs, or else say there will be a fall election so that high unemployment can be publicly debated.

Parliament currently is scheduled to resume Oct. 10.

Broadbent added that because of high and rising jobless rates, the government likely will pay a record $5 billion in unemployment insurance benefits this year. That represents money for nothing, he said.

Sinclair Stevens, the Progressive Conservative finance critic, also said Parliament should be recalled and a new federal budget introduced.

In July, the unemployment rate among young people between 15 and 24 was 14.2 per cent. This was a slight improvement from 14.7 per cent in June but still well ahead of the national average.

Among students between 15 and 24 who are returning to school in the fall, the unemployment rate was 15.3 per cent in July, up from 15.2 per cent in June.

The number of people with jobs in July was 10.64 million. This represents an increase of 422,000 in the number working in the last year.

The unemployment rate fell in six provinces in July and rose in the remaining four.

The rate in Newfoundland, while still the highest in the country, was down to 16.7 per cent last month from 17.3 per cent in June.

Alberta, usually the province with the lowest unemployment rate, last month posted a slight increase in its rate to 4.8 per cent jobless, compared with 4.7 per cent in June.

While others are soaking up sun at the beach,

these students are seeking electronic breakthroughs

Meanwhile, Back At the Lab . . .

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Andolie Williams has her sights set on working with either satellite or space programs when she graduates from Camosun College.

She is the first woman to take the electronic technology course at the college.

While others are relaxing and sunbathing on the beach, she and fellow students Al Ross and John Hawkins are spending the summer working in the college's laboratory. They are among the 15,000 students employed under the provincial government's $22.8 million Youth Employment Program.

They all are working on projects that could prove inexpensive breakthroughs in this electronic age.

Using an ordinary home television set, a typewriter keyboard, a tape deck and a commercial micro processor, Andolie is perfecting a home computer that, once programmed, can take over such chores as turning a sprinkler system on and off automatically, turning a house heating system up and down and switching a stove on and off.

The tape deck is used for memory storage and the whole system functions through electronics interfacing.

The students' teacher, Nick Ernst, says micro processors soon will become commonplace, being used in micro ovens and washing machines.

Andolie says she chose electronics because she likes mathematics and physics and wants a science that can be applied.

Hawkins, when his two-year course is completed, wants to work for himself as a designer of sound reinforced systems.

His summer job is modifying and perfecting a three-day timer designed by student Allan Doe during the summer of 1977.

Using a videotape recorder, the timer can be set to record any program in a period of between one and three days with pinpoint accuracy, Hawkins says.

"With design modification we can extend the length — even to three years — actually, a year is no problem at all."

The timer can be used for almost any appliance, Hawkins says.

Ross is perfecting a people counter, using high frequency soundwaves that cannot be picked up by the human ear.

"You can't see it, you can't hear it, you don't know it's even there," Ross explains.

Radiating 32 pulses a second, Ross says the compact people counter could be used counting numbers of people using public buildings and such commercial outlets as restaurants.

Attached to an alarm, it could be an effective security measure for buildings.

It could also be used to find objects in water.

The three first-year students were recommended by the college for the program and the electronic thresholds they're crossing could have an impact on our lives.

A survey shows 114 businesses in Greater Victoria are taking part in the program, as well as some non-profit organizations.

The range of employment includes law firms, driver training, computers, printing, accounting, insurance, hotels, pipe organ manufacturing, tree surgery and art galleries.

But the three college students consider their work the most challenging of them all.

Al Ross, Andolie Williams and John Hawkins are knee-deep in electronic gadgetry

TOWN TALK

An ex-Navy chef laughed uproariously Monday when Prince Andrew suggested his cooking might have hastened the departure of one of his royal ancestors.

Bernard "Steve" Stevens, a Royal Canadian Legion veteran of 4953 Rocky Point Road, was introduced to the prince at the Government House garden party.

"I told him that when I was I working in a hotel I once helped cook for King George and Queen Elizabeth (parents of the present Queen) during their visit to Canada just before the war," said Stevens.

"Prince Andrew replied: 'Grandma is fine but whatever did you do to grandpa?'"

Still on the subject of the royal visit, Town Talk's award for the most banal comment of the day goes to CKDA news director J.J. Richards, who was master of ceremonies for the outdoor Victoria Symphony concert attended by the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Andrew.

"I'm sure you have heard, sirs, that we are in the middle of our Capt. Cook celebrations, and this leads us to our next item — excerpts from Rogers' and Hammerstein's South Pacific," Richards announced.

Well yes, J.J., we can quite see the connection.

CBC's veteran weatherman Bob Fortune is leaving Hourglass to take on new undisclosed program responsibilities.

Fortune, who has been 25 years calling the weather, has also hosted and contributed to 160 Klahanie outdoor programs.

His parting statement: "I have really enjoyed doing the weather thing over the years, practising every night . . . hoping one day to get it right."

So how come the Liquor Distribution Branch, which is busily trying to parch quenched throats around the province with import beer, doesn't bring in some kegs of draft?

Good question, says LDB representative Janet Willson, but the answer's proving to be as elusive as a case of cold Olympias.

Willson says she's been asking senior LDB officials why there's no draft being imported but so far has drawn only blanks.

"All I can tell you is that it's not being brought in right now, but I'm not sure what the reasons are."

She said that apparently LDB management considered the possibility of bringing in draft beer during the strike but opted not too. With a few senior staff members away on holidays, however, she's having a hard time finding out who decided what and why.

Willson said as soon as she finds out she'll let us know. In the meantime TownTalk readers who pine for a glass of draft will just have to grimace and bear it.

Is it littering to throw ice on a hot roadway in the middle of a heatwave?

A big navy blue, whitetopped Thunderbird (MDK 025) pulled away from Shelbourne heading west on Hillside one morning last week. The presentable man behind the wheel produced a large drinking tumbler from somewhere beside him, drained it off and coolly emptied the remaining handful of icecubes out the window.

No sign of a swizzle stick.

Royal Jubilee Hospital is stepping up its campaign to eliminate smoking in the hospital.

Medical director Dr. Ray LeHuquet says the hospital is a health care institution and should show leadership.

Hundreds of signs have been posted throughout the hospital buildings, with the exception of the Memorial Pavilion. LeHuquet says, for some of the veterans at the pavilion, a cigarette is one of their few comforts.

No patient can now smoke in the room without written permission from the doctor.

An area on each floor has been set aside for smokers but LeHuquet says the areas are assigned for patients and visitors are being asked to refrain from smoking until they leave the hospital.

The Harmony Room cafeteria has been divided into smoking and non-smoking sections.

Hospital employees will not be permitted to smoke at their place of work.

Up until now, LeHuquet says, the anti-smoking campaign has been an educational one, done through its Kick It-Anti Smoking courses.

These will still be available to the hospital staff and the public.

New Beer Supply On Way

More imported beer will be delivered to Victoria liquor stores this week but the size of the shipment is unknown.

Liquor Distribution Branch spokesman Janet Willson said today more beer is being shipped in from the U.S. and Victoria stores could be restocked by Thursday or Friday.

She said some beer will also be routed to up-Island communities which have gone dry for some time.

About 18,000 cases of beer arrived in Victoria last Friday, sparking line-ups that rivalled Star Wars. The stampede of beer lovers made short work of the shipment, and the same response is expected when the beer trucks roll into town again this week.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers Union reports no developments in the protracted dispute.

Family Day On Sunday

Victoria Mayor Mike Young will proclaim Sunday as World-Wide Family Day at a ceremony at city hall on Thursday at 11:30 a.m.

The family day is an international event sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club's Spiritual Aims Committee.

Arsonist, Smokers Blamed

An arsonist and careless smokers caused three weekend forest fires in the Langford district.

A B.C. Forest Service spokesman said today firefighters are still mopping up after a fire which broke out Saturday afternoon and swept through 18 acres near the Greater Victoria Water District's Humpback Reservoir.

He said the fire had been set in three spots and it was "pretty definite" the blaze had been set deliberately by "someone with a mental problem."

Hikers, families out for a drive and campers in the area watched as water bombers passed back and forth through the thick smoke. The forestry spokesman said the rough terrain made it difficult for ground crews to get to the blaze.

The fire was under control by mid-afternoon on Sunday after water bombers were again brought in to fight a fresh outbreak that covered three to four acres.

The mopping up will continue for a couple more days, the spokesman said, and the area will be patrolled for at least two weeks.

The two fires caused by smokers were both fought on Sunday. The first was spotted about 7 a.m. on the west-facing slope of Lone Tree Hill in the Highlands district and had been burning all night.

The spokesman said it had started near the top of the hill and had burned down the shady slope, covering four to five acres.

A bulldozer and water bombers were brought in and although under control, the fire is still burning.

The second fire caused by a careless smoker was reported Sunday night at Sheringham Point about two miles east of Point-No-Point.

The spokesman said the fire fighters were helped by 12 young people employed by the federally-funded Katimavik program to renovate the Shirley Community Centre.

The fire was confined to one-quarter of an acre and extinguished Sunday night.

Forest fires caused by lightning storms Friday in the southern half of B.C. have spread fire fighters and equipment thin as about 670 fires were burning in the province.

Don Owen, director of forest protection, said three intensive days of battling the fires resulted in the majority being located and controlled.

Similar storms several weeks ago started fires in the north and some of them, particularly in isolated areas, were still burning.

"This is the first time in memory that the whole of the province has been the scene of full-scale fire suppression activities at one time," said Owen.

He said about 7.5 centimetres of rain fell on the Terrace area and, combined with cooler temperatures, helped stop fires from spreading in the Prince Rupert forest district.

He said 23 air tankers, 37 helicopters, 87 bulldozers and about 2,000 men were involved in fighting blazes.

Jetfoil Foiled Again

The hydrofoil Flying Princess II broke down here Monday for the second time in less than three weeks.

A Boeing repair crew was flown in and the hydrofoil made her way to Seattle under her own power at 6:30 p.m.

The Flying Princess II does not run between Seattle and Victoria on Tuesdays or Wednesday but will resume her regular run on Thursday.

Washington State Ferries marketing manager Newell Hunter said 186 passengers on board were diverted to the ferry Princess Marguerite for return to Seattle.

Hunter said the problem was a front strut on the Boeing Jetfoil that would not descend and lock. He said it appeared a faulty solenoid switch caused the malfunction.

The same hydrofoil broke down in the harbor here last month on its maiden sailing day. That breakdown was blamed on debris sucked through intakes into the impellers.

Fire Doused At City Mill

Damage was estimated at $3,000 in a fire early this morning at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill.

The blaze was discovered at 3:08 a.m. in the ductwork carrying sawdust from the planers to a storage area.

Firemen extinguished a fire that broke out in a garage behind a duplex at 914 Queens Saturday afternoon.

The fire, believed to have been caused by children playing with matches, caused about $2,000 damage.

The building is owned by Alice Casson of 895 Walfred.

Two Dead, One Hurt In Mishaps

Two men are dead and a third is in critical condition following separate mishaps in Greater Victoria over the holiday weekend.

Twenty-eight-year-old Alexander David (Sandy) Hogg of 611 Admirals drowned Saturday while swimming at the main beach at Beaver Lake.

And early Sunday morning a 21-year-old serviceman at CFB Esquimalt, Joseph Michael Wright, died when his motorcycle collided with a power pole in the 200-block Esquimalt Road.

In critical condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Michael Bouchard, 23, of 58-3498 Lovat, who was struck by a camper truck that rammed into the side of a house at 3103 Balfour, Saturday afternoon.

Saanich police said Hogg was attempting to swim to a raft about 75 feet off the crowded beach when he disappeared.

He was not missed until half an hour later. His body was discovered about 40 feet off shore.

An ambulance crew, assisted by firemen and Dr. N.W. Wales of 325 Weald, one of several hundred sunbathing at the beach, spent more than 40 minutes trying to revive Hogg.

Victoria police said Wright died within an hour of the mishap which occurred at 1:34 a.m. near the Pay 'N Save gas station, 212 Esquimalt.

A passenger on the bike, Robert Daniel McLean, 19, also of CFB Esquimalt, was knocked 36 feet through the air, landing on grass near some tennis courts. He is in fair condition in the intensive care unit of Victoria General Hospital.

Police said Bouchard was leaving the house at 3103 Balfour with his girlfriend, Heather Pringle, 21, shortly before 4 p.m. when a small camper truck driven by John Michael Perey, 57, of 70 West Gorge, failed to make a turn at the T-intersection, jumped the sidewalk, crossed the lawn, hit the porch and crashed into a corner of the house coming to rest partially inside the basement.

A spokesman said Bouchard saw the vehicle coming and pushed Miss Pringle out of the way. He was hurled about 40 feet over a neighbor's fence by the impact.

He was taken to hospital with multiple fractures and internal injuries.

The truck was demolished and about $8,000 damage was done to the building.

Around noon Saturday Saanich police nabbed a 32-year-old escaper from Jordan River corrections unit after a short foot chase.

Rubin Wallace, who was reported missing from the prison camp at 8:45 p.m. Aug. 2, was picked up leaving a friend's home on West Burnside.

It Takes a Man to Cook Steak Right

YEARS AGO, I WROTE A piece in a national magazine on male cookery. In the course of it, I suggested more or less casually that the cooking of a steak should be a male prerogative . . . that no woman, in fact, should be allowed within fussing distance of a steak on the fire.

That article has been reprinted several times, and each repetition subjects me to another barrage of flak from outraged female cooks.

But I see no reason to depart from my contention, which is based on woman's lamentable inability to let well enough alone.

A good steak, thick and juicy, is one of nature's fairest gifts. As such, it emphatically does not need any garnish, marinade or tenderizing.

What it does need is nononsense male firmness.

To cook a steak on our battered and blackened outdoor fireplace, I build my fire with finicky care. Not until I have achieved a bed of alder or fir-bark coals several inches thick do I address myself to the cooking.

Then slap goes the steak, naked except for a light dusting of garlic powder, on to the near-incandescent grill, to sizzle, sear and smoke. A quick flip to the other side and it's ready for serving, medium-rare with its rich juices sealed in the meat.

True, I've had the occasional complaint from a woman guest that she preferred her meat slightly less raw. But there speaks jealousy engendered by a fact unpalatable to the woman cook.

This is that outside her kitchen where everything is handy and there hang a host of aids, she is pathetically lost.

Nowhere is this more obvious than when a fish waits cooking.

Give a woman a salmon — let's say a plump and shiny seven-pound coho, which is about the size they're running now — and she will react to it in any one of several ways.

She will elect to stuff it and bake it.

Or poach it and serve it with icky white sauce.

Or she may wrap it in foil and steam the goodness clear out of its hearty red flesh.

A man, guided by atavistic promptings, knows better. He's aware that the only way to cook a salmon with supreme edibility in mind is to barbecue it over an open fire.

First, I catch my salmon. (My wife caught our last, but no matter!)

Then I take a sharp knife and carefully dress out two fillets, one from each shining side. I don't skin these fillets. When the salmon is browning on the fire, the skin holds the meat together.

Traditionally, salmon should be barbecued in a frame of ocean-spray saplings. But most times, I use a couple of old-fashioned, long-handled toasters into which the fillets, cut in half, are clamped.

I'm fussy about my fire. Not any old blaze will do. I like a solid base of fir-bark nuggets, with split alder laid on top for the wonderful, smokey je-ne-sais-quoi which too adds to the flavor. What's needed is an even, steady heat that will render the oil from those rich red slabs.

As the salmon begins to acquire a golden patina, I start basting it. That basting is mighty important.

For this purpose you can use sake, the rice-wine of Japan, if you wish.

For myself, I prefer a smooth blending of melted butter, lemon juice, and just a whisper of garlic. (Come to think of it, a woman gave me that cherished recipe!)

When your salmon is about the color of a good, light beer, turn it out of the toasters on to a platter. Serve with a baked potato — you can wrap that in foil if you wish — and a green salad, and you have a meal which is really too good for sinful mortal man.

All this talk of food has made me hungry. I just wandered into the kitchen to ask Win what's coming up for supper.

"Food surprise," she told me, very much the assured mistress of her kitchen. Then, kindly but firmly, she sent me about my business.

Food surprise, huh? Whatever it is, it will be delicious!

Youth Clinic

Young readers' questions on human relations and sex are answered by a panel of experts: Marion Powell, medical doctor; Blair Shaw, psychologist; Graham Cotter, clergyman; and Bruce Vichert, social worker. DEAR MR. VICHERT: I am a 16-year-old high school student. I met a girl last fall and slowly but surely I began to see more and more of her. But I found that she was more serious about me than I thought. The problem is that I wasn't and still am not very attracted to her.

She finally invited me to a party of hers that I didn't want to go to. But due to certain circumstances I was forced to go. I had a good time but I didn't want to get serious with her that night.

Unfortunately, though, I did, and before long the two of us left the party for quite a while. It was obvious to everyone what we had been doing. After that night I began to ignore her slightly and she got mad at me for "loving her and leaving her alone." What am I supposed to do?

ANSWER: It sounds a bit as though you would like to have your cake and eat it too. I don't believe it is possible for you to get someone to like you, then tell them that you don't like them and expect them to be friendly about the whole thing.

The problem started when you were not honest with your feelings in the first place. Now it is time to be honest. If you do not like the girl and do not want to go around with her, then it is important that you let her know.

She may become angry because her feelings are hurt and because she does not want to lose you. But pretending to like her, or not giving her a straight message, is not going to help.

People do have a remarkable ability to recover, so be honest. And give some consideration to the way you treat people. If this is an example, "dropping" her may be doing her a favor.

DEAR DR. POWELL: I am a 13-year-old girl and my boyfriend is 13. Last year he moved away and I have been writing letters to him since. I really like him a lot and he says he likes me. I never see him and I'd like a chance to date other boys. But if I do I feel like I'm cheating on him and it makes me feel bad because he's so far away. What should I do?

ANSWER: I think you should date other boys. If you would feel better, tell him in your next letter that while you still like him you cannot sit at home all the time thinking about him.

Since it is impossible because of distance to see him, keep up your letter-writing and tell him to date other girls. In that way both of you will make new friends and will be having fun.

If you should meet again you can always renew your old friendship. Time and distance make feelings change, particularly when you are 13.

DEAR DR. SHAW: I am 14½ years old and an only child. My problem is that I can't talk to kids of my own age. I am so self-conscious that when I meet new kids I usually sit in the background. I have no self-confidence, either.

I've had this problem for a long time and I thought that I would soon come out of my shell. But this hasn't happened and lately I have been getting more and more depressed.

When I go to a dance no one asks me to dance and I don't get up to dance by myself because I can't. Most of the time I'm glad that no one asks me, but when I come home I get really mad at myself. Sometimes I'm so ashamed of myself that I hate myself for being such a coward.

I have a fear of being laughed at by other kids. When I go to a social event I just want to melt away so that no one will notice me. What's wrong?

ANSWER: It seems that you don't like yourself because you are not perfect. Well, join the gang. You are in there with the rest of us.

If depression is getting the better of you, phone your family doctor or a community mental health clinic for a confidential appointment.

DEAR DR. COTTER: I am a 14-year-old girl. I am very shy and I get hurt easily. I just feel that my life isn't worth living. I never seem to have any friends and I feel like nobody loves me.

Even when I'm in someone's arms I don't feel love. I don't feel secure or warm, no matter how much I love the person. I don't enjoy being with guys.

Everyone around where I live and at school hates me, but I don't think they have reason to. I asked my parents to move but they won't. I am confused, restless and very unhappy. If my life continues like this much longer I don't want to live.

Please can you help me?

ANSWER: The first thing you have to ask yourself is whether you feel this way absolutely all the time. Many people feel this way part of the time, but they feel it so strongly that it makes them forget that at other times they feel quite differently.

I can assure you that you are loved. God loves you. I love you, even though I have never met you, because I know you exist and you are unhappy. And what about your parents?

If none of this comforts you, it may be that you are at a growing stage in which you realize that you are a separate person, no longer a part of your parents or identified with your own age group. This can be a very lonely experience and if you feel things very deeply, you should not have to go through it alone.

There are people you can talk to. Most cities have a youth agency where people will listen to you without breaching confidence.

Psychiatrist Urged For Hypochondria

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I live with a man who, for 20 years, has thought he's had one disease after another. As a loyal wife, I've been taking him from doctor to doctor only to find each time that there is nothing wrong with him. You can imagine what this is doing to my life. But I won't stop if there is any way I can help him. He is too good and kind a person to ignore when he is worried. — Mrs. E.Y.

Dear Mrs. Y.:

Hypochondriacs bear a tremendous burden. In most instances, they are deprived of their rightful heritage of fun, happiness and a sense of well-being.

Physicians are constantly being confronted by people who live in terror of impending health catastrophes. Even though thorough medical checkups are made, and patients are assured of no existing disease, only temporary freedom from the yoke of hypochondria is attained.

It takes an enormous amount of co-ordinated effort by the doctor and the family to ease the anxiety of the person who lives in constant dread of impending disease. Not all wives have your admirable patience. For it is tiring, physically and emotionally, to live with someone who is never free of some illness.

Going from doctor to doctor is exhausting financially and emotionally. Obviously, you must change your present pattern and embark on a totally new approach to your husband's problem. Your supportive behavior must, even at this late date, be amplified by the psychological help he obviously needs. It is not too late to urge him, with your doctor's help, to seek some psychiatric help. It is never too late for one to gain better insight into the reasons for his behavior.

Your husband, you and the rest of your family will gain immeasurably when the reasons for his hypochondria are pinpointed.

I use the sauna and the steam room in my club, even in hot weather. Can excessively hot steam hurt the lungs? — Mr. B.G.

Dear Mr. B.:

Steam can be very soothing to the mucous lining of the entire respiratory tract. People with chronic coughs and irritation of the bronchial tube find that this is true.

Yet excessive steam can be injurious to the delicate tissues of the lung. It must be remembered that sensible exposure is the only way to benefit from a sauna or steam bath.

Remember, moderation is the key to any health treatment.

Soap has been known for more than 2,300 years. At Pompeii, Italy, a soap factory has been excavated which is more than 2,000 years old.

Soap is still being made from fat and lye. Lye used to be produced from wood ashes but is now made by passing a strong electric current through sea water.

The four-page folder Making Soap With Lye tells you how you can easily make an excellent all-purpose soap from lye and waste cooking fats from your kitchen.

If your household does not generate sufficient fat or grease to make all the soap you need, you can buy beef, mutton or pork fats very cheaply and still considerably reduce your soap budget.

The quality of homemade soap depends on the ingredients used and the care in preparation. Tallow and lard make the best soap.

The folder also offers directions for making toilet soap, perfumed soap, soft and molded soap. To make toilet soap, olive oil is added to the lye and fat.

For the folder Making Soap With Lye, write to: Public Relations Department, Standard Brands Ltd., 1408 Birchmount Rd., Scarborough, Ont. M1P 2E3.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Every day my husband picks up your column and says, "Well, let's see what Abby has to say to those nuts who write to a newspaper psychiatrist!" He would never admit that HE could use some help.

My husband is a good provider and generally a good husband, but he is a very poor father to our five children, who range in age from two to 10. He never pays them the slightest attention unless it's to punish them.

When a male friend comes over, the children compete for his attention and the man can't get the little ones off his lap. I am worried about how this will affect my children's lives.

Will my girls be so hungry for male affection and approval that they'll become pregnant at 16? And will my sons grow up to be mamma's boys? What can I do before it's too late? Or am I being silly?

SAL

DEAR SAL: It's sad that a couple who have spent almost a dozen years together have so little communication between them. Why can't you tell your husband these things? You seem to be an intelligent woman, and your complaints make sense.

If you aren't able to get through to your husband, find someone who can. He desperately needs to get this important message.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, who is 15, is begging me to let her marry a boy of 16. I have tried to talk her into waiting until she finishes high school. (This is her first year.)

Recently she told her father and me that if we don't give her permission to marry, she will get herself in a fix like lots of girls do. Then we will have to let her get married or she will disgrace us.

I told her that was the wrong attitude to take, but she said she doesn't care, she loves the boy. (He quit school and has no job.)

Have you any advice to give her? She reads your articles every day. I hope you will print something to help us with this situation since she is about to drive her Pa and me nuts. Thank you. — MOM

DEAR MOM: I could give your daughter plenty of advice, but she hasn't asked for any. Tell her that even if she gets herself "in a fix," you may not consent to the marriage . . . She can disgrace only herself.

Bio-dex

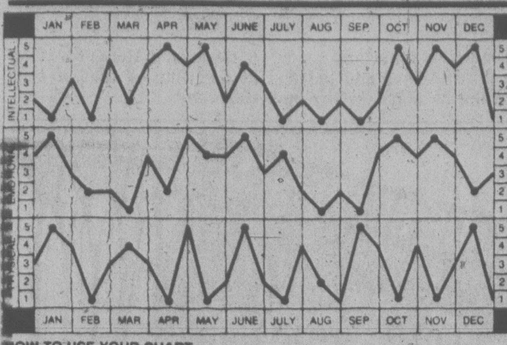
Aug. 9/78

By Ken J. Michaels

Your computerized biorhythm

©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978

Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle- If you're feeling edgy, just start taking things a bit more slowly.

6-10 Neutral Cycle- Don't be too proud to accept an offer of help. We all need a hand now and again.

11-15 Positive Cycle- Success doesn't always equate with money and power. You're successful if you're achieving your goal.

I always try to take a positive view in this column — partly to offset the many people who blame their low Bio-dex for every misfortune, including the bad moods of the boss! Certainly a low reading does nothing to help your day, but you can still have fun if you are determined enough. Look upon a low Bio-dex as a challenge — like a rainshower on a camping trip.

Common ¢ents

A bride carrying a bouquet of silk flowers she hopes will last forever should make sure the silk is washable. Then, she should dust the flowers as often as she dusts the table under the vase holding them. Dusting prevents a build-up of dust particles that can become dirt with moisture in the air. Reversing the vacuum cleaner nozzle to blow the dust out is the best way.

A small decorative table lamp can be turned into a more useful reading light when it's made taller. Look for a block of wood to paint or stain, a pottery bowl to turn upside down, or an unusual box — anything for a lamp base that's about three inches high and pleases your eye. Glue the lamp to the base, of course.

A box of baking soda may seem to last forever in your cupboard, but it won't keep its normal leavening power for baked goods forever. When you buy a new box, put the soda into an air-tight container and it should keep its power for 18 months. Old soda is still useful as a scouring powder which won't scratch chrome and plastic.

* * *

Old boards, a wooden ladder or fireplace wood piled behind the garage can be meals for termites that can then eat their way into the garage's wood frame. And, if you do much digging or moving of soil away from the foundation, could be you've removed any termite-control soil treatment added before the house was built. That soil may need to be re-treated. Did you know that termite-control chemicals will provide a termite-proof barrier for at least 25 years? So says the U.S. Forest Service.

BPW Convention Zeroes In on Bill C-52

A resolution, accepted at the biennial convention of Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in Moncton, N.B., calls for amendments to federal Bill C-52 (that passed first reading in Parliament before summer recess) to abolish the offence of rape and create two new assault offences.

Sponsored by the Victoria BPW Club, this resolution asks for deletion of the offences of indecent assault and aggravated indecent assault from the sexual offences section of the Criminal Code.

In their place, the resolution calls for the reintroduction of the two offences in a new section designated assault offences. This to establish them as criminal rather than sexual, with no differentiation on the basis of gender.

The resolution also suggests that penalties for these crimes be less severe to reduce reluctance by victims to prosecute.

It says penalties for aggravated indecent assault should be decreased to 14 years imprisonment from life.

Indecent assault should have a maximum penalty of seven years instead of 14 years.

Victoria Club president Joan Currie commends the federal government for its action in introducing the new legislation but says Bill C-52 still contains references to sexual offences and sexuality.

"These are criminal offences aggravated by assault and not sexual offences," she argues.

Describing rape and related crimes as "a major problem in Canada", she points out that only five per cent of rapists are convicted.

"We believe this is because rape is named as a sexual offence when it is essentially assaultive in nature and creates risk to life.

"That is why our resolution urges deletion of any references to sexual offences."

The resolution also asks for amendments to the assault offence section of the bill to provide that consent to sex shall not be inferred by lack of resistance; that the new offences reject all suggestion of voluntary assumption of risk; and that the amount of risk created, the use of a weapon(s), the extent and nature of injuries threatened or inflicted, be the aspects to be considered.

Here it urges that the Canada Evidence Act be changed to provide that past sexual history of the complainant be inadmissable and that a similar section be deleted from the Criminal Code bill.

It also urges that the words "of previous chaste character" be deleted from a section dealing with protection of the victim.

The convention approved a project that would culminate in 1980 to coincide with the golden anniversaries of both Canadian and International Federations of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the mid-term mark of International Women's Decade.

During the first phase of this program, individual clubs will be asked to sponsor political awareness seminars in their communities and in neighboring areas.

These seminars will be planned to make the public more aware of the indispensable role of women in the political process, promote the need for greater participation and leadership of women through educational and informational activities and involve not only members in communities where there are BPW clubs, but also women in as many communities in Canada as possible.

elizabeth forbes

It was also decided, as part of the golden jubilee program in 1980, to request the federal government to issue a commemorative stamp in honor of the founding of the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Miss Mildred Head of England, international federation president, was a special guest at the convention.

She urged the gathering to take responsibility for all women, not just those who belong to clubs.

Many problems have become universal she said. They affect us beyond our national boundaries. Consequently, their solution has also become our responsibility.

"We want to make it easier for every woman in every country to achieve her full potential."

Speaker at the closing banquet was Rita Cadieux, deputy chief commission of the Canadian Human Rights Commission.

In part, she said that although using law as an instrument of social change is "fairly controversial," it can be used to help change attitudes and behavior, and it will help to prevent and correct discrimination which keeps the vast majority of women in Canada from earning equal pay for equal work.

Bitter Chess Match Yields Another Draw

BAGUIO, Philippines (UPI) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi unleashed a bitter verbal assault on champion Anatoly Karpov today, but he failed to rattle his opponent and the two men ended their 10th world championship game in a draw.

Karpov, the Soviet Union's whiz kid, offered the draw after 44 moves. After two minutes of thought, Korchnoi accepted.

Karpov, who leads the series 1-0, again refused the traditional pre-game handshake with his 47-year-old defector opponent when they sat down at the chess board.

The players did not look at each other as they made their opening moves. Karpov, playing white, began the game with his favorite Ruy Lopez opening.

Shortly after the game started, a Korchnoi spokesman issued a statement accusing the Soviets of resorting to "intimidation and blackmail" to get what they want from the match organizers.

"The reason he (Korchnoi) emigrated from the Soviet Union was precisely because he wanted to be liberated from the distasteful task of clasping hands with such people as Karpov and his crew," the statement by Korchnoi's chief representative said.

Korchnoi defected to the West two years ago, leaving his wife and son behind.

U.K. Liberals Split In Thorpe Crisis

LONDON (Reuter) — The political future of Jeremy Thorpe, former leader of the British Liberal party leader, remains in doubt despite a vote of confidence from his local supporters.

The party is split over how to handle the crisis that erupted when the dapper 49-year-old politician was charged in court Friday with plotting to murder former male model Norman Scott.

Scott, 37, has claimed he and Thorpe had a homosexual relationship in the early 1960s, which Thorpe has persistently denied.

After a long meeting in his western England constituency of North Devon, his local party executive said it asked Thorpe to stand again as a parliamentary candidate in the general election expected next October.

It issued a statement Saturday night expressing admiration for his political service and full confidence in him.

In apparent defiance of Liberals who feel Thorpe should not contest the election, the executive statement said he was invited to stand "preferably as an official Liberal, but if not, as an Independent Liberal."

The move was criticized by one Liberal parliamentarian, Cyril Smith, who told the British Broadcasting Corp.: "Whether or not a person can contest a general election with a charge of this gravity pending is extremely doubtful."

The charge facing Thorpe carriesa maximum sentence on conviction of 10 years' imprisonment.

Smith said at least four of the party's 13 members of the House of Commons are "distinctly unhappy" about the North Devon executive statement.

Saturday night's executive statement only said he has "indicated his intention of accepting."

Meanwhile, Peter Bessell, a friend Thorpe, said Saturday he would return to England from Oceanside, Calif., to testify for the prosecution at Thorpe's trial on charges of conspiring to kill an alleged former homosexual lover.

"He is an old friend, and one doesn't care very much for testifying against old friends," Bessell said in a telephone call to The Washington Post, adding that he had voluntarily cooperated with the investigation and agreed to testify.

Sun Returns

LONDON (AP) — The Sun, Britain's biggest-selling daily newspaper, was back on sale at newsstands Saturday for the first time in two weeks. The paper's reappearance followed a return to work by journalists who walked off the job in a dispute over pay. The racy, right-wing tabloid, which sells an average of four million copies a day, lost a reported £1.5 million ($3 million) during the walkout. The 224 journalists voted to return to work after the management offered to discuss the wage issue.

Honduras President Ousted

TEGUCIGALPA (AP) — The commanders of the Honduran armed forces ousted President Juan Alberto Melgar Castro after accusations of government involvement in cocaine smuggling to the United States and appointed themselves a three-man ruling junta.

A communique issued by the junta Monday night said Melgar Castro, a 47-year-old brigadier-general, has resigned. It said Gen. Policarpio Paz Garcia, the head of the armed forces and commanding general of the army, will head the junta as chief-of-state, and the other members were Lt.-Col. Domingo Alvarez, chief of the air force, and Lt.-Col. Amilcar Zelaya Rodriguez, chief of public security.

No disturbances were reported.

It was the second military house-cleaning in three years due to charges of corruption. The military replaced President Oswaldo Lopez Arellano with Melgar Castro in April 1975 after Lopez Arellano was accused of accepting $1.25 million in bribes from United Brands, the U.S. exporter of Honduran bananas.

Lopez Arellano had come to power as a colonel in a military coup in 1963, permitted 18 months of elected government in 1971-72 and then was overthrown by President Ramon Ernesto Cruz in 1972.

Opposition parties have been accusing the military regime of widespread corruption among government officials and senior military officers.

Former Nazi Resigns

STUTTGART (AP) — Hans Filbinger, a leading candidate for the West German presidency until his Nazi past caught up to him, announced today he is resigning as minister-president of Baden-Wuerttemburg state. The post is equivalent to governor.

Bowing to mounting pressure from within the conservative Christian Democratic party, the 64-year-old politician said he is stepping down because of a campaign to blacken his reputation that caused him great injustice.

He told a news conference he reached the decision after careful and thorough deliberation following three days of talks with party allies.

The former Third Reich naval justice official had come under a barrage of criticism in the last three months for his involvement in court martials that sentenced four German soldiers to death during the Second World War.

Filbinger's supporters had initially rallied behind him when the first execution case was revealed last May by West German publications.

But support eroded as his involvement in three other death sentences, which were never carried out, were revealed in recent weeks by the West German news media.

Filbinger has stubbornly defended his actions as a naval prosecutor and judge, insisting he acted according to the legal system prevailing at the time — that of Nazi Germany.

Golf Links Fouled

LA MALBAIE, Que. (CP) — Five people have pleaded not guilty to charges of vandalism after acid and gasoline were spilled on putting greens at the Richelieu Golf Club earlier this month. A juvenile is also charged but has not appeared in court. The club estimated cost of the damage to be about $6,000.

Thirty Get Typhus

TORTOSA, Spain (Reuter) — Nearly 30 people have been admitted to hospitals with typhus after an outbreak of the disease in this eastern town near popular vacation resorts, health officials reported Monday.

Officials in the provincial capital of Tarragona said vegetables grown in areas irrigated by the River Ebro could have caused the outbreak.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Whenever possible, expert players try to avoid finesses, for a finesse is a 50-50 proposition; and one cannot emerge victorious unless he finds lines of play that present better than a 50-50 chance. In today's deal we have an example of the avoidance of a finesse.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	6 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♠.

South received the favourable opening lead of the spade eight, which was covered by the ten, jack and king. Dummy's three top trumps were then cashed (East discarding a club on the third trump lead), after which the nine of spades was led. When East followed with the deuce, South played his five-spot, finessing against East's queen. As is evident, the nine won the trick. Next came a spade to South's ace, West discarding a diamond.

A low club to the board's king came next, after which the jack of clubs was returned to South's ace, West's queen falling. A third club lead was ruffed with dummy's last trump, West discarding a diamond. The South hand was then entered by trumping dummy's last spade, West discarding another diamond.

The defenders' hands were now an open book. East was known to have started with exactly two hearts, four spades (West had failed to follow suit to the third spade lead) and five clubs (West had discarded a diamond on the third club lead). Thus East's three remaining cards had to be two diamonds and one club.

Who had the diamond king was, of course, not known, but it didn't matter, as South demonstrated. At trick 11, South led his remaining club, discarding thereon the board's five of diamonds. East won the trick with the ten of clubs, — and had no option but to lead a diamond, giving declarer the last two tricks and his contract.

Of course if declarer had finessed against West's queen of clubs, he would have fulfilled his slam contract. But I think we'll all agree that the line of play South adopted was superior to staking everything on a 50-50 finesse.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, August 9, 1978
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take stock. Retain what is of real value. Discard what is made up of fantasy, deception, wishful thinking. Be positive of legal rights, permissions. Partnership, marriage, publicity, image — these also are a part of scenario. The number 7 could play significant role.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You'll be more productive. Spotlight on achievement. Older individual is in your corner, although it may not be obvious. Accent on employment, well-being, nutrition, health, dependents and pets. Capricorn, Cancer persons are part of picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Finish rather than initiate projects. Strike hard for beliefs, principles. Your views will be vindicated. Aries, Libra figure prominently. Accent on creativity, variety, change, children, affair of heart. Take lead, be aggressive in business and personal activities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Highlight new starts, independence, originality. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Your position is strong — you need not take back seat. Know it and others also will be aware of it. You can reinforce structure.

LEO (July 23- Aug. 22): Ideas are plentiful — relax and choose quality. One you admire sends letter. Read between the lines. Cancer, Aquarius — and another Leo — could play vital roles. Your hunches are valid. Know it and follow path of intuition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on change, money, valuables, personal possessions. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently. Display humor, adaptability. Close family member seeks counsel — on surface. In actuality, it is your approval that is being sought.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Lunar cycle is such that you can take initiative. Don't hold back — go all the way with creativity, independence, uniqueness. Be specific about details, take nothing for granted. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo persons figure in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): If perceptive, you gain glimpse behind the scenes. News or visits concerning one hospitalized or confined to home is indicated. You are soon going to be given a signal, message or subtle hint which, if properly interpreted, could lead to "something big."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on friendship, desire, getting what you want, "making points" with one who fascinates you. Major domestic adjustment could be in the offing. Taurus, Libra and number 6 figure prominently. Look ahead, be aware of potential.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): See what is as contrasted to "what could be." Don't be distracted by those who make claims, whine, brood about past and want only to take, with no thought of giving in return. You're going places — and you do not need persons who constantly sing the blues.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Indirect approach brings most favorable results. Accent on raising sights, enlarging horizons — you are going to teach and learn. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently — and so does the number 8. Older person is on your side but may be reluctant to show it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish what you start — dig deep for information concerning special agreements, rentals, money transactions. Aries, Libra figure in scenario. You locate what had been missing and prestige rises as result. Relative says, "You were right and I was wrong!"

IF AUGUST 9 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are dynamic, headstrong, aggressive, very attractive and somewhat spoiled by the opposite sex. Aries, Libra persons play key roles in your life. November will be memorable, as you make new starts and earn more money. Major domestic adjustment is featured for 1978. You are talented, creative drawn to medicine and the arts.

Don't Starve Your Peonies

Peonies serve more than one purpose in the garden; and therefore, repay the small amount of summer attention they need to obtain their best effects.

Unlike other perennials, they can remain for years without being lifted or divided; in fact, the longer they are left in one place the better they perform.

Inasmuch as they flower early in the season after making a mass of new growth, they need to be planted in full sun to enable them to manufacture the food they need. In shade, they are spindly with weak growth that cannot support the heavy blossoms.

When peonies fail to bloom, it is usually because the plants are set too deeply in the soil.

It has been handed down from generation to generation of gardeners that the growth buds must never be more than two inches below soil level, and most of us follow this rule religiously.

When the plants still persist in being flowerless despite our care at planting time, we are free to suspect some other condition as being the cause.

I know for a fact that when a hundred peony plants are being planted or moved, in a nursery, there is no time to measure the soil covering over each plant.

True, they are always planted "shallow," but their exact depth is never checked, yet every plant will flower the following year as it should.

It seems possible that flowering is more dependant on summer care than on depth of planting.

Plants that make so much growth in one season and produce so many large blossoms will require plenty of nourishment to keep going year after year.

When we think of the feeding and watering program considered necessary to produce the large chrysanthemum bloom seen in the fall shows, most of us must admit our peonies are on a starvation diet.

Without running any scientific tests, it appears to me that a complete fertilizer applied directly after flowering, followed by regular watering until at least the end of August, has produced plants which bloom consistently.

The foliage must be kept in good condition throughout the summer to replace the food to the tubers that has been expended on spring growth and flowering.

At this time of year gardeners want to know the correct time to cut off the dead foliage. Obviously, dead foliage at this time of year is bound to result in poor flowering next year.

Peony foliage retains its beauty and usefulness as a garden decoration until the end of September. According to what varieties is grown, the leaves during late summer become tinged with nut brown, a dusky pink, or a dark plum coloring, and their decorative value is high.

When September comes, with its host of flower shows, the peony foliage may be taken from the plants without harm to the tubers. The coloring of the leaves indicates maturity and their function is just about finished.

But it is wise to make it a rule to remove only one leaf stem from each plant at one time, since they are stll partially active and total removal would suddenly cause all food supply to end. By the end of September the foliage that is left will wither and the tubers will be ready for division or moving, but this is only done when absolutely necessary.

With any of these early blooming perennials, if we treat them well after flowering they give us a real treat the next season.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Difficult, Baffling Task Never Daunted Paul VI

By COLMAN McCARTHY
Washington Post

Pope Paul VI, who sought to promote the renewal of the Roman Catholic Church while maintaining the unique nature of papal authority, died Sunday in Castel Gandolfo, Italy, at the papal summer residence. He was 80.

Paul's 15 years as the 262nd successor to St. Peter followed the papacy of the easy-going and earthy John XXIII. Paul's initial work involved maintaining the momentum of Vatican II, the vehicle for aggiornamento — or updating — initiated by Pope John, yet holding to the traditional teachings of Catholicism.

Few other popes in history — certainly none in modern times — have faced such a difficult and baffling task.

Partly because of the seeming contradictions of his work and partly because of his nature, Paul was known throughout his years of "serving God by serving God's people" as an enigmatic personality impossible to classify. Paul was shaped by Pope Pius XII, a refined intellectual, but he was influenced by John XXIII, an offhanded charmer.

But looming over all else was the weight of 20 centuries of tradition. One of Paul's teachers and later a colleague within the Vatican, the late Giulio Cardinal Bevilacqua, summed up the responsibilities of Paul: "He (had) to do all at once what his predecessors did successively."

In the interests of openness, Paul became the most traveled pontiff in history, visiting 16 countries on six continents. It followed that he was one of the most accessible of popes. To the world, he regularly issued ringing calls for social and economic justice. He opened new lines of communication to communists down the street in Rome's city hall, and to those in the Kremlin.

Paul maintained the church's position against artificial means of birth control. Sometimes he spoke with deep misgivings about the direction of affairs within the church and deplored the duststorms of criticism that swirled around his actions.

Last year the editors of Commonweal, the lay-edited New York magazine, said Paul should resign. The right-wing Rome newspaper Il Tempo fumed in 1971 that the Pope had no business granting a private audience to a group of rock musicians.

The criticisms and attacks may be seen as the inevitable result when an activist leads an organization so immense and so seemingly changeless as the far-flung Catholic church.

Paul's activism was stunningly apparent in the early days of his service. In January, 1964, he left Rome for a three-day visit to the Holy Land. On the Mount of Olives he met with Patriarch Athenagoras, leader of Greek Orthodoxy. The pair exchanged the kiss of peace and Paul said the union between the two bodies "should never have been broken." In Jerusalem he called out "Shalom, shalom!" to the festive crowds that followed him.

Less than a year later, in December, 1964, Paul traveled even farther from Rome — to Bombay, India. He again was in a non-Christian country, but he found himself welcomed as few other visitors ever have been. Some 2.5 million people cheered his presence in what was said to be the largest gathering ever to attend a public event in India.

By then it no longer was unusual for the Pope to pack his bags and fly around the world. His October, 1965, trip to New York was a mix of drama, friendship and spirituality. He went before the United Nations and called out, "No more war — war never again." Although this was not a renuncation of the just-war theory — a renunciation that Catholic pacifists such as Dorothy Day long have urged — it was a stark enough denunciation of militarism to bolster what was then the beginning of the Vietnam anti-war movement in America.

After New York Paul went to Fatima, Portugal (May, 1967); Bogota, Colombia (August, 1968); Geneva, Switzerland (June, 1969); Kampala, Uganda (July-August, 1969), and on an eight-country tour in Asia and Australia (November, 1970.)

This unprecedented exposure to the world and the times led Paul into areas of leadership traditionally not considered religious, but which, he insisted, should be the essence of religion — peace among nations. He explained his philosophy of outreach on returning to Rome from his trip to New York and the United Nations.

"I quoted St. Paul in my talk, but I did not have to evangelize," he said. "The talk I gave was situated on another plane — if I dare say so, the plane of Socrates. I was looking for what was reasonable and just, equitable and salutary, what every responsible man ought to think. If I evangelized, it was to preach that Gospel virtually contained within the Gospel, which is the Gospel of reason and justice."

In discussing modern economics Paul argued that "private property does not constitute for anyone an absolute and unconditioned right. No one is justified in keeping for his exclusive use what he does not need, when others lack necessities."

The Pope's thinking uplifted many social activists living under juntas in such areas as Latin America. Suddenly they saw Paul as an ally in their struggles to overcome the problems of landlessness among the poor.

The Pope was explicit on this point: "If certain landed estates impede the general prosperity because they are extensive, unused or poorly used, or because they bring hardship to peoples or are detrimental to the interests of the country, the common good sometimes demands their expropriation . . . . We must make haste: too many are suffering, and the distance is growing that separates the progress of some and the stganation, not to say the regression, of others."

Not surprisingly, the encyclical provoked a strong reaction. The Wall Street Journal called it "warmed-over socialism." Time magazine said it "had the strident tone of an early 20th-century Marxist polemic."

The controversy stirred by Paul's views on economics and development was minor compared with the clamor that followed his sixth encyclical, "Humanae Vitae" (Of Human Life), published in July, 1968. In denouncing the birth-control pill, as well as other forms of artificial contraception, the pope sought to end a long-festering debate.

But the opposite happened. Not only did the debate within the church increase — as a small army of theologians, bishops and scholars arguing that the Pope was, at best, misguided — but those outside the church suddenly saw a dashing of hope that the Vatican finally understood the urgency of population control.

Paul never retreated on the issue. Within the church, a powerful faction of supporters argued that, precisely because of "Humanae Vitae," history would regard Paul as one of the greatest popes. In such countries as Ireland, where contraceptives cannot legally be manufactured but must be obtained through the mail or imported in some other way, the pope was seen as a defender of sexual purity in an age obsessed with pleasure and heedless of the commandments against sexual license.

Although stung by the critical reaction to the encyclical, Paul avoided striking back at his attackers. In the name of papal authority, he could have silenced the disagreeing theologians, as the Vatican had done in years past.

His attitude toward the dissent is revealed in his remarks in the 1968 book, "The Pope Speaks," a papal dialogue with French philosopher Jean Guitton. "One must not seek to conquer his questioner, but to convince him. In a sane and holy dicussion there is no 'master' and no 'slave,' to use the language of Marx, but two servants of the truth," Paul told Guitton.

Frontrunners To Succeed

Associated Press

About a dozen names have figured most prominently in speculation about who will succeed Pope Paul, but trying to specify the choice is about like picking a number on a roulette wheel.

None of the 115 active cardinals from whom the pope will be chosen openly campaigns for the job nor offers a program, which leaves the decision all the more wrapped in the secrecy of their conclave.

The history of the last five centuries would indicate it would be an Italian, as have been all the popes of that period.

However, for the first time, non-Europeans hold a majority in the College of Cardinals, adding a new element to the process and making speculation more uncertain.

Non-Italian frontrunners include Johannes Cardinal Willebrands, 68, of Utrecht, Netherlands, the long-time head of the Vatican Secretariate for Christian Unity.

Others are David Cardinal Hume, 55, of Westminster, England, a newly risen eminence on the church scene, Eduardo Cardinal Pironio, 57, an Argentine and progressive now heading the Vatican's department for religious orders, and Franz Cardinal Koenig, 73, of Vienna, an Austrian whose age is deemed a drawback.

The Italian cited most in speculation about Pope Paul's choice to succeed him is Giovanni Cardinal Binelli, 57, long the Pope's right hand man as the Vatican's undersecretary of state.

Others are Pericle Cardinal Felici, 66, head of the Vatican Congregation of Canon Law with a reputation for conservatism; and Sergio Pignedoli, 68, head of the Secretariate for Non-Christians.

Another Vatican hand mentioned is Sebastino Cardinal Baggio, 65, head of the Congregation of Bishops, highly esteemed for his diplomacy in dealing both with the conservative and liberal wings of the church.

Mass For Pope

Lt.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving is expected to attend a Pontifical Mass tonight at St. Andrew's Cathedral to mourn the passing of Pope Paul VI.

Premier Bill Bennett will be represented at the memorial service, scheduled to begin at 7:30, and the mayors of the Greater Victoria municipalities have also been invited to attend, a church spokesman said today.

The service is open to the public.

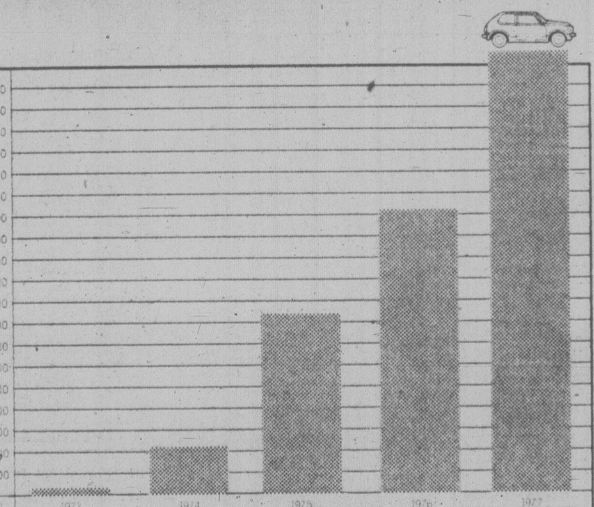
IN CARS, AS IN MILK, THE CREAM RISES TO THE TOP.



In a few short years Honda Civic has risen, like the cream of the crop, to become the No.1 small car in Canada.*

It is a fact of life that there can only be one number one. There can only be one president of a country or company. There can only be one winner in a race. There can only be one first man on the moon.

In the area of small economy cars the one that has risen, like cream, to the top is Honda Civic. In the past 21 months more Canadians have discovered and praised the virtues of Honda Civic than any other small car.

The reason that Honda Civic is the cream of the crop is because it utilizes the cream of automotive design and engineering.

The cream of small car drive trains has become front wheel drive. A Honda Civic not only has front wheel drive, but it also has a transversely mounted engine to free up more interior space. Front wheel drive improves traction, uses the engine's power more efficiently and delivers an uncanny sense of control and enjoyment to the driver. The cream of car suspensions is independent McPherson struts on all four wheels. Because it is the cream it is relatively expensive and rare. You'll find it on the Honda Civic.

The cream of small car design is the trapezoid shape. It is aerodynamically sound. It is stable. And most of all, it maximizes interior space while minimizing exterior space. This trapezoidal shape was first successfully introduced to Canada by Honda. Since then several of the other car manufacturers have also adopted the concept.

More cream: self adjusting, power assisted front disc brakes. Rack and pinion steering. 4-speed transmission. Carpeting. Rear window defroster. Tinted glass. Fully reclining bucket seats. All standard equipment. And all available in a car that is one of the most moderately priced in Canada – Honda Civic.

Surely if you're in the process of choosing a new car you owe it to yourself to closely inspect a Honda Civic.

Look at it this way; if you're not getting the cream of the crop, then what are you getting?

KIDD RETIRES AWARD BEGUN

KIDD

Victoria Press has established a $250 annual scholarship in honor of Stewart Kidd, who retired Friday after 27 years as circulation manager.

The scholarship will go to a high school graduate going on to university or technical college.

The award, known as the Stewart E. Kidd Scholarship, will be awarded, starting in 1979, on the basis of high school graduating marks and length of service as a Vic Press newspaper carrier.

Kidd came to Victoria in 1951 after working for the Edmonton Bulletin and the Vancouver Sun.

When he started in Victoria, the Times and Colonist were still in two separate buildings downtown but they soon merged under one roof at 2631 Douglas. Kidd later supervised the move to the present building at 2621 Douglas.

He is widely known in newspaper circuation circles in Canada and the United States and has been in the Internatonal Circulation Managers Association for 30 years.

He is a past president of the association's regional chapter.

In retirement, Kidd plans to pursue hobbies as a photographer and golfer. He received a set of golf clubs among other gifts at a retirement dinner.

City circulation manager Roy Comrie becomes circulation director.

Teacher Role Also Vital

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Sraff

Headlines in Victoria International Festival concert reviews have so far been solely concerned with performances by the various members of the group of distinguished artists currently in residence in the city.

This series continues tonight at the McPherson Playhouse with a program that will feature flutist Robert Aitken and violinist Ruggiero Ricci with Robin McCabe, as well as the Pacific Wind Quintet and UVic Faculty Ensemble.

But there is of course, another aspect, and that is the role of these international concert artists as teachers. This is highlighted for the people who have been attending the "Stars of Tomorrow" series of concerts at St.Michael's University School and have enjoyed the privilege of hearing a number of the exceptional students currently studying at the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts.

Monday's concert, for example, demonstrated that the series is aptly named. The performers, singers and instrumentalists, are young artists, some of them already professionals worthy of headlines and showing clear promise that in another decade they will take their place as distinguished international stars.

There is Jacqueline Brand, an astonishing 17-year-old violinist, technically and musically superb, and already able to play shouler-to-shoulder with the master, Ricci.

And there is Philip G. Thomson. This young Canadian pianist appeared Saturday on the Keyboard Opulence program aongside Abbey Simon, Robin McCabe and harpsichordist Harmon Lewis. Thomson was a replacement for the Canadian piano virtuoso William Aide, who has injured his hand, but he was in no way belittled by his distinguished company.

Playing Concert Arabesques on themes of Johann Strauss Jr., Thomson provided not only a virtuosic performance but one that was remarkable for its interpretation of the character and continental flavor of the music.

On the student program, Monday, he performed the Beethoven "Waldstein" Sonata. This was technically excellent and revealed a fine sense of style; only at times was there apparent an as yet undeveloped maturity in interpretation.

Also appearing impressively were a fine young flutist, Joanne Geerling; Guy Ethier, a warmly resonant baritone; violinist Johannes Jansonius; cellist Thalia Moore; soprano Bette Cosar, all with supporting young instrumentalists of outstanding attainment.

Because of this year's record quantity and quality of students, two extra concerts have been inserted into the Stars of Tomorrow series. These will take place at St.Michael's this Friday and on Aug. 18 at 7:30 p.m.

Once again the keyboard program, Saturday, attracted a capacity audience which was rewarded with some magnificent Chopin.

SEPT. 5 MEETING IN U.S.

Sadat, Begin To Talk Peace With Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will meet with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin at Camp David, Md., Sept. 5 to resume direct Middle East peace negotiations.

White House press secretary Jody Powell announced that the three leaders will meet "to seek a framework for peace in the Middle East."

Powell said all are agreed that there is "no task more important than the search for a permanent settlement."

The meeting is the first major breakthough in Mideast peace efforts since Sadat suspended negotiations last January. It will be the first meeting between Sadat and Begin since last December.

The meeting was arranged by U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance, who went to the Mideast during the weekend to try to resume negotiations at the foreign minister level. Vance now is in Alexandria, Egypt

The peace efforts had broken down over an Egyptian demand for an Israeli commitment to surrender sovereignty over the West Bank of the River Jordan and the Gaza Strip.

The Israeli position has been that it would discuss the sovereignty question after a five-year period of limited self-rule by Palestinian Arabs in the area.

A White House official told reporters that the summit meeting is not expected to produce a settlement but only to narrow differences between Sadat and Begin.

The official said Carter decided to ask for it because Egypt and Israel were drifting away from a peaceful settlement and Carter wanted to restore lost momentum in the peace negotiations.

He said Carter hopes the summit "will encourage the parties to resume more direct negotiations themselves."

The breakthrough came after one of the gloomiest periods in the protracted U.S. effort to get the two combatants back to the bargaining table.

Only last week, Sadat denounced Israel for injecting what he said were new negative elements. And the Egyptian president said he did not favor a return to direct talks.

B.C. DAY, THE HOTTEST THIS YEAR

The B.C. Day holiday was a real scorcher in Victoria as the temperature climbed to a sizzling 29.3 degrees recorded at Gonzales Beach — the highest this year.

Monday's temperature tied the record for Aug. 7 set in 1941, but doesn't come close to the all-time high of 36 recorded in July, 1941, according to Environment Canada's Victoria weather bureau.

Victoria residents can expect continued highs of between 27 and 30 for most of this week as a ridge of high pressure deflects storm conditions to northern B.C.

Chan 11 May Go To CBC

Victoria television viewers will lose Channel 11 programs in November if an agreement between Cablevision Victoria Ltd. and local CBC officials is confirmed by Ottawa.

Vancouver viewers will lose either Channel 4 or Channel 5.

The lost channels can be picked up on mid-band if a converter is purchased.

The shuffle is to make room for the Victoria CBC station which comes on the air in November.

Canadian stations are given top priority.

The CBC wanted 4, 5 or 7 but Cablevision Victoria proposed moving its public announcements to Channel 11 and freeing Channel 10 for the Victoria CBC outlet.

Cablevision general manager Len Charlish said this proposal has been accepted on a one-year trial basis by local CBC officials but will also have to be approved by federal regulatory authorities before it can proceed.

Charlish said the CBC has reserved the right to move to some other channel if ghosting develops on its Channel 10 station during the one-year test period.

"They will be interested in 4, 5 or 7 if they don't stay on Channel 10."

In Vancouver the Victoria station will be seen on Channel 4 or Channel 5. For the first year, programs will be identical on Channel 2 and the Victoria CBC channel.

In all, there are 12 cablevision channels plus the potential of another 12 channels on mid-band by purchasing a converter.

U.S. DOLLAR LOSES AGAIN

LONDON (AP) — Lack of confidence continued to erode the value of the United States dollar today, and gold prices moved close to the record high set last week.

In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 187.375 yen.

A Blazing Warm Welcome For Philip

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria laid on a warm welcome — a blazing 29 degrees Celsius and at least as high on the hospitality scale — for the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Andrew when they visited the city Monday to crown the summer-long Captain Cook festivities.

It was the sort of day when anyone in shorts and T-shirt would have felt overdressed, and those involved in official ceremonies were clearly uncomfortable in their suits, formal dresses and uniforms.

But all concerned, from Premier Bennett down to nine-year-old Casey Leggatt, of Santa Barbara, California, seemed to be having a good time despite the heat.

Casey and a young friend were in a throng of about 7,000 jammed on the lawns of the Legislative Buildings and the waterfront when Prince Philip stopped for a brief chat before he headed for lunch in the wardroom at CFB Esquimalt.

What were they discussing?

"We talked about skateboards," said Casey. "He asked me if I wore all the equipment and I showed him my kneepads."

It was characteristic of the human touch which has tended to replace stodgy formality on recent royal tours, and there were scores of such conversations and handshakes — by both father and son — throughout a taxing public program of more than six hours, most of it under a fierce sun.

The program itself ran with military efficiency, although the unpredictability of the Queen's consort kept plainclothes security men hopping in a state of mild apprehension.

His preference for the do-it-yourself approach was evident earlier in the day.

According to officials he took over the controls of the RAF Andover aircraft of the Queen's Flight on takeoff from Edmonton, and landed it at Victoria International Airport.

And Prince Philip also made his official driver redundant for much of the busy Victoria schedule, by driving the yellow rent-a-Rolls convertible himself on three separate trips.

Only about 100 spectators were on hand to watch the 11.30 a.m. touchdown, and other small groups of

Fractional Decline In Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — The national unemployment rate declined slightly in July for the first time in four months, but remained stubbornly higher than July a year ago.

In B.C. an influx of students seeking summer jobs boosted the provinces's July unemployment rate marginally over last month.

Labor Minister Allan Williams said the province's actual unemployment rate rose to 7.6 per cent of the labor force compared with 7.2 per cent in June. A year ago, the B.C. unemployment rate was 8.5 per cent.

However, in B.C. the number of seasonally-adjusted employed fell slightly to 7.7 per-cent in July from 7.8 per cent in June.

With 927,000 unemployed nationally, Statistics Canada said today that on a seasonally-adjusted basis, 8.4 per cent of the Canadian work force was without jobs. That was down fron 8.6 per cent in the four preceding months.

The seasonally-adjusted rate measures trends in unemployment.

The actual number of unemployed was up from 903,000 in June. The actual unemployment rate of eight per cent was the same as for June.

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — A lone Dutch hijacker armed with a toy pistol and what he said were explosives commandeered a KLM jet airliner Sunday over Western Europe and ordered the pilot to fly to Algeria, but three passengers and a stewardess overpowered the hijacker and the plane landed safely here, officials said.

Cart Pull In Heat Kills Dogs

PENTICTON (CP) — The death of two husky dogs marred this Okanagan city's Peach Festival last weekend.

The two dogs from Penticton's sister city of Yellowknife - Monkey and Hitler - died from heat prostration after pulling a summer training cart through the festival's parade in 35-degree heat.

"Heat prostration is not a pretty thing," said Randy Manuel, spokesman for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "They really suffered."

Manuel said the animals were left for an hour and a half in a hot asphalt area before the parade. Their owner forced them to continue the 2.4 kilometre-march after they collapsed one third of the way to the finish, he said.

CHRISTINA EYES DIVORCE?

ATHENS (Reuter) — Greek newspapers reported today that Christina Onassis plans to divorce the Soviet husband she married seven days ago. But her aunt promptly denied the reports, which had no firm source.

The millionaire daughter of the late Greek business tycoon Aristotle Onassis arrived here unexpectedly during the weekend and on Sunday met with relatives and executives of her business empire.

The aunt, Artemis Garoufalides, told reporters today that her niece had postponed her return to Moscow until next week. "But this does not mean that she has decided to divorce her new husband," she said.

Miss Onassis married former Soviet shipping official Sergei Kauzov in Moscow last week after a whirlwind romance which took both the Western and Communist worlds by surprise.

But then, the new Mrs. Kauzov cancelled a planned honeymoon in Siberia and flew to Greece to stay at an Onassis family villa in the seaside resort of Glyfas.

One Greek newspaper, Kathimerini, reported today that the marriage might be considered dissolved.

Another newspaper, Proini Eleftherotypia, said: "... Christina has discovered that her Russian husband has 'other roles' and has abandoned him before she becomes more tied with him—through a religious marriage."

It added: "These roles, as mentioned by press reports abroad, are wider Russian plans to place under Russian control the interests of the Onassis group."

Europe Rains Claim 19 Lives

MILAN (UPI) — Torrential rains and gales hit northern Italy and southern Switzerland today, sending rivers and lakes over their banks and killing at least 19 people.

By mid-afternoon, 12 people were known dead and 10 were missing in Italy's Ossola valley near the Swiss border.

The Tessin region of southern Switzerland was devastated by the severe weather and first reports said seven people were killed there.

Heavy, hot winds that swept much of Italy Monday brought a rain storm that sent mountain streams and rivers over their banks in the Ossola and Aosta valleys.

At least 10 bridges, including four on the railroad line from Domodossola to Locarno, Switzerland, were swept away.

Mountain streams and rivers in Switzerland also overflowed, isolating villages and blocking railroad lines and passes into Italy.

A Swiss student died as his tent was swept away by an overflowing river. A 55-year-old mechanic was carried away by flood waters after the bridge he was standing on collapsed and a fireman drowned during a rescue operation.

In Lugano, Switzerland, the bodies of two 12-year-old girls were found buried under the debris of their home which had been swept by a landslide.

Police said two other persons drowned in a lake.

Zermatt, the famous ski resort, was cut off from the valley and hundreds of mountain climbers were stranded in shelters.

World Mourns Pope's Death

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A line of mourners standing 10 abreast and stretching for more than 100 metres waited to pass by the body of Pope Paul VI today at the summer papal residence at Castel Gandolfo as the Vatican made preparations for his burial Saturday and the election of his successor.

Pope Paul's closest aides and other prelates knelt and prayed in silence around his body through the night.

Sources at Castel Gandolfo estimated that more than 50,000 persons had passed through the Renaissance palace in the Alban Hills south of Rome to pay homage to the 262nd Roman Catholic pontiff who died there Sunday night after a heart attack.

The Pope's body lay on a catafalque, dressed in the red robes that he usually wore for funeral rites. Alongside was a crucifix on a long shaft, his favorite religious object. A tall candle burned as a symbol of eternal life.

The Pope's brother, Ludovico Montini, 83, a former Christian Democrat senator, attended a mass in the 16th-century San Tommaso da Villa Nuovo Church near the summer residence. The local population rushed to him to offer condolences, shaking his hand and patting him on the shoulder.

"No, no, don't worry," Montini told the parish priest, Rev. Angelo Pozzi, and others nearby. "Let's be certain that we eventually meet him in paradise."

Thousands more were expected to make the pilgrimage to Castel Gandolfo Tuesday and Wednesday. Bigger crowds will flock to St. Peter's Basilica after the body is transferred there Wednesday night, to lie in state until the funeral Satur-

Western Mines Ltd. reports net earnings of $226,078 or four cents a share for the three months ended June 30 compared with $163,374 or three cents a share in the corresponding period last year. Revenue was $3,873,014 compared with $4,281,812. Six-month earnings totaled $725,041 or 14 cents a share compared with $666,610 or 13 cents a share for the first six months of 1977. Revenue in the first six months was $7,438,300 compared with $8,332,353. "Increasing interest income, lower operating costs, and reduced exploration expenditures substantially offset the $408,798 decline in net smelter return during the quarter, confirming the trend in the first quarter," said G. M. Furnival, president and chief executive officer.

City Savings

City Savings and Trust Co. reports net earnings of $2,417,000 or $1.56 a share for the six months ended June 30 compared with $1,601,000 or $1.27 a share for the corresponding period last year. Gross income was $30.7 million compared with $21.7 million. "Although mortgage markets generally are much more competive, the volume of new loans generated continues to run at prior years' levels, with unfunded commitments standing at a record high," said Arnold H. Jeffrey, president. "Steady growth has been recorded by our new equipment leasing and business term lending division with volume of new business being more than $3 million monthly," he added.

Cda. Permanent

Canada Permanent Trust Co. reports net earnings for the first half of 1978 equal to $1.11 per share, up from $1.09 in the corresponding 1977 period. Earnings were 42 cents per share in the first quarter and 69 cents in the second quarter. In Victoria, branch manager H.A. Manson said high interest rates continued to exert pressure on the average rate spread. The spread declined to 1.63 per cent at the end of the second quarter after being 1.72 per cent at the end of the first. It had been 1.72 per cent at the end of June, 1977. The Permanent's net real estate commissions showed a significant gain, up $1.8 million or 59 per cent over he first half of last year. Non-financial costs were the same as in the first quarter, although higher than during the same period in 1977.

Controlled Food

Controlled Foods International Ltd. a Burnaby- based company with 94 restaurants across the country, reports record second-quarter sales of $13,828,272, an increase from $11,937,990 in the corresponding period last year. Net earnings jumped to $464,203 or 25 cents a share compared with $246,078 or 13 cents a share last year. President Peter Main said sales for the first six months were $25,334,666, an increase of 18.5 per cent over last year. Net profits were $715,929 or 38 cents a share compared with $92,166 or five cents a share last year.

Central Eastern

Central and Eastern Trust Co. of Halifax reports net income for the six-month period ending June 30 of $3,482,000, or 65 cents a share, compared with $3,610,000, or 67 cents per share, for the first six months of 1977.

While others are soaking up sun at the beach,
these students are seeking electronic breakthroughs

Meanwhile, Back At the Lab . . .

Times Staff

Andolie Williams has her sights set on working with either satellite or space programs when she graduates from Camosun College.

She is the first woman to take the electronic technology course at the college.

While others are relaxing and sunbathing on the beach, she and fellow students Al Ross and John Hawkins are spending the summer working in the college's laboratory. They are among the 15,000 students employed under the provincial government's $22.8 million Youth Employment Program.

They all are working on projects that could prove inexpensive breakthroughs in this electronic age.

Using an ordinary home television set, a typewriter keyboard, a tape deck and a commercial micro processor, Andolie is perfecting a home computer that, once programmed, can take over such chores as turning a sprinkler system on and off automatically, turning a house heating system up and down and switching a stove on and off.

The tape deck is used for memory storage and the whole system functions through electronics interfacing.

The students' teacher, Nick Ernst, says micro processors soon will become commonplace, being used in micro ovens and washing machines.

Andolie says she chose electronics because she likes mathematics and physics and wants a science that can be applied.

Hawkins, when his two-year course is completed, wants to work for himself as a designer of sound reinforced systems.

His summer job is modifying and perfecting a three-day timer designed by student Allan Doe during the summer of 1977.

Using a videotape recorder, the timer can be set to record any program in a period of between one and three days with pinpoint accuracy, Hawkins says.

"With design modification we can extend the length — even to three years — actually, a year is no problem at all."

The timer can be used for almost any appliance, Hawkins says.

Ross is perfecting a people counter, using high frequency soundwaves that cannot be picked up by the human ear.

"You can't see it, you can't hear it, you don't know it's even there," Ross explains.

Radiating 32 pulses a second, Ross says the compact people counter could be used counting numbers of people using public buildings and such commercial outlets as restaurants.

Attached to an alarm, it could be an effective security measure for buildings.

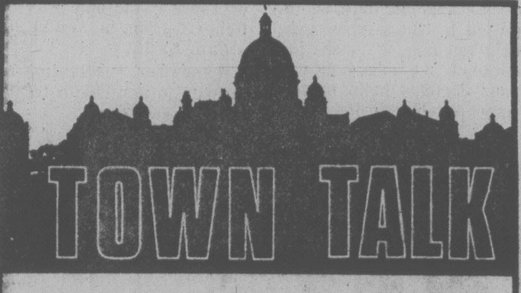
It could also be used to find objects in water.

The three first-year students were recommended by the college for the program and the electronic thresholds they're crossing could have an impact on our lives.

A survey shows 114 businesses in Greater Victoria are taking part in the program, as well as some non-profit organizations.

The range of employment includes law firms, driver training, computers, printing, accounting, insurance, hotels, pipe organ manufacturing, tree surgery and art galleries.

But the three college students consider their work the most challenging of them all.



TOWN TALK

An ex-Navy chef laughed uproariously Monday when Prince Andrew suggested his cooking might have hastened the departure of one of his royal ancestors.

Bernard "Steve" Stevens, a Royal Canadian Legion veteran of 4953 Rocky Point Road, was introduced to the prince at the Government House garden party.

"I told him that when I was I working in a hotel I once helped cook for King George and Queen Elizabeth (parents of the present Queen) during their visit to Canada just before the war," said Stevens.

"Prince Andrew replied: 'Grandma is fine but whatever did you do to grandpa?'"

Still on the subject of the royal visit, Town Talk's award for the most banal comment of the day goes to CKDA news director J.J. Richards, who was master of ceremonies for the outdoor Victoria Symphony concert attended by the Duke of Edinburgh and Prince Andrew.

"I'm sure you have heard, sirs, that we are in the middle of our Capt. Cook celebrations, and this leads us to our next item — excerpts from Rogers' and Hammerstein's South Pacific," Richards announced.

Well yes, J.J., we can quite see the connection.

CBC's veteran weatherman Bob Fortune is leaving Hourglass to take on new undisclosed program responsibilities.

Fortune, who has been 25 years calling the weather, has also hosted and contributed to 160 Klahanie outdoor programs.

His parting statement: "I have really enjoyed doing the weather thing over the years, practising every night . . . hoping one day to get it right."

So how come the Liquor Distribution Branch, which is busily trying to parch quenched throats around the province with import beer, doesn't bring in some kegs of draft?

Good question, says LDB representative Janet Willson, but the answer's proving to be as elusive as a case of cold Olympias.

Willson says she's been asking senior LDB officials why there's no draft being imported but so far has drawn only blanks.

"All I can tell you is that it's not being brought in right now, but I'm not sure what the reasons are."

She said that apparenlty LDB management considered the possibility of bringing in draft beer during the strike but opted not too. With a few senior staff members away on holidays, however, she's having a hard time finding out who decided what and why.

Willson said as soon as she finds out she'll let us know. In the meantime TownTalk readers who pine for a glass of draft will just have to grimace and bear it.

Is it littering to throw ice on a hot roadway in the middle of a heatwave?

A big navy blue, whitetopped Thunderbird (MDK 025) pulled away from Shelbourne heading west on Hillside one morning last week. The presentable man behind the wheel produced a large drinking tumbler from somewhere beside him, drained it off and cooly emptied the remaining handful of icecubes out the window.

No sign of a swizzle stick.

Royal Jubilee Hospital is stepping up its campaign to eliminate smoking in the hospital.

Medical director Dr. Ray LeHuquet says the hospital is a health care institution and should show leadership.

Hundreds of signs have been posted throughout the hospital buildings, with the exception of the Memorial Pavilion. LeHuquet says, for some of the veterans at the pavilion, a cigarette is one of their few comforts.

No patient can now smoke in the room without written permission from the doctor.

An area on each floor has been set aside for smokers but LeHuquet says the areas are assigned for patients and visitors are being asked to refrain from smoking until they leave the hospital.

The Harmony Room cafeteria has been divided into smoking and non-smoking sections.

Hospital employees will not be permitted to smoke at their place of work.

Up until now, LeHuquet says, the anti-smoking campaign has been an educational one, done through its Kick It-Anti Smoking courses.

These will still be available to the hospital staff and the public.

New Beer Supply On Way

More imported beer will be delivered to Victoria liquor stores this week but the size of the shipment is unknown.

Liquor Distribution Branch spokesman Janet Willson said today more beer is being shipped in from the U.S. and Victoria stores could be restocked by Thursday or Friday.

She said some beer will also be routed to up-Island communities which have gone dry for some time.

About 18,000 cases of beer arrived in Victoria last Friday, sparking line-ups that rivalled Star Wars. The stampede of beer lovers made short work of the shipment, and the same response is expected when the beer trucks roll into town again this week.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Union of Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers Union reports no developments in the protracted dispute.

Family Day On Sunday

Victoria Mayor Mike Young will proclaim Sunday as World-Wide Family Day at a ceremony at city hall on Thursday at 11:30 a.m.

The family day is an international event sponsored by the Downtown Kiwanis Club's Spiritual Aims Committee.

Arsonist, Smokers Blamed

An arsonist and careless smokers caused three weekend forest fires in the Langford district.

A B.C. Forest Service spokesman said today fire-fighters are still mopping up after a fire which broke out Saturday afternoon and swept through 18 acres near the Greater Victoria Water District's Humpback Reservoir.

He said the fire had been set in three spots and it was "pretty definite" the blaze had been set deliberately by "someone with a mental problem."

Hikers, families out for a drive and campers in the area watched as water bombers passed back and forth through the thick smoke. The forestry spokesman said the rough terrain made it difficult for ground crews to get to the blaze.

The fire was under control by mid-afternoon on Sunday after water bombers were again brought in to fight a fresh outbreak that covered three to four acres.

The mopping up will continue for a couple more days, the spokesman said, and the area will be patrolled for at least two weeks.

The two fires caused by smokers were both fought on Sunday. The first was spotted about 7 a.m. on the west-facing slope of Lone Tree Hill in the Highlands district and had been burning all night.

The spokesman said it had started near the top of the hill and had burned down the shady slope, covering four to five acres.

A bulldozer and water bombers were brought in and although under control, the fire is still burning.

The second fire caused by a careless smoker was reported Sunday night at Sheringham Point about two miles east of Point-No-Point.

The spokesman said the fire fighters were helped by 12 young people employed by the federally-funded Katimavik program to renovate the Shirley Community Centre.

The fire was confined to one-quarter of an acre and extinguished Sunday night.

Forest fires caused by lightning storms Friday in the southern half of B.C. have spread fire fighters and equipment thin as about 670 fires were burning in the province.

Don Owen, director of forest protection, said three intensive days of battling the fires resulted in the majority being located and controlled.

Similar storms several weeks ago started fires in the north and some of them, particularly in isolated areas, were still burning.

"This is the first time in memory that the whole of the province has been the scene of full-scale fire suppression activities at one time," said Owen.

He said about 7.5 centrimetres of rain fell on the Terrace area and, combined with cooler temperatures, helped stop fires from spreading in the Prince Rupert forest district.

He said 23 air tankers, 37 helicopters, 87 bulldozers and about 2,000 men were involved in fighting blazes.

Jetfoil Foiled Again

The hydrofoil Flying Princess II broke down here Monday for the second time in less than three weeks.

A Boeing repair crew was flown in and the hydrofoil made her way to Seattle under her own power at 6:30 p.m.

The Flying Princess II does not run between Seattle and Victoria on Tuesdays or Wednesday but will resume her regular run on Thursday.

Washington State Ferries marketing manager Newell Hunter said 186 passengers on board were diverted to the ferry Princess Marguerite for return to Seattle.

Hunter said the problem was a front strut on the Boeing Jetfoil that would not descend and lock. He said it appeared a faulty solenoid switch caused the malfunction.

The same hydrofoil broke down in the harbor here last month on its maiden sailing day. That breakdown was blamed on debris sucked through intakes into the impellers.

Fire Doused At City Mill

Damage was estimated at $3,000 in a fire early this morning at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill.

The blaze was discovered at 3:08 a.m. in the ductwork carrying sawdust from the planers to a storage area.

Firemen extinhuished a fire that broke out in a garage behind a duplex at 914 Queens Saturday afternoon.

The fire, believed to have been caused by children playing with matches, caused about $2,000 damage.

The building is owned by Alice Casson of 895 Walfred.

Two Dead, One Hurt In Mishaps

Two men are dead and a third is in critical condition following separate mishaps in Greater Victoria over the holiday weekend.

Twenty-eight-year-old Alexander David (Sandy) Hogg of 611 Admirals drowned Saturday while swimming at the main beach at Beaver Lake.

And early Sunday morning a 21-year-old serviceman at CFB Esquimalt, Joseph Michael Wright, died when his motorcycle collided with a power pole in the 200-block Esquimalt Road.

In critical condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Michael Bouchard, 23, of 58-3498 Lovat, who was struck by a camper truck that rammed into the side of a house at 3103 Balfour, Saturday afternoon.

Saanich police said Hogg was attempting to swim to a raft about 75 feet off the crowded beach when he disappeared.

He was not missed until half an hour later. His body was discovered about 40 feet off shore.

An ambulance crew, assisted by firemen and Dr. N.W. Wales of 325 Weald, one of several hundred sunbathing at the beach, spent more than 40 minutes trying to revive Hogg.

Victoria police said Wright died within an hour of the mishap which occurred at 1:34 a.m. near the Pay 'N Save gas station, 212 Esquimalt.

A passenger on the bike, Robert Daniel McLean, 19, also of CFB Esquimalt, was knocked 36 feet through the air, landing on grass near some tennis courts. He is in fair condition in the intensive care unit of Victoria General Hospital.

Police said Bouchard was leaving the house at 3103 Balfour with his girlfriend, Heather Pringle, 21, shortly before 4 p.m. when a small camper truck driven by John Michael Perey, 57, of 70 West Gorge, failed to make a turn at the T-intersection, jumped the sidewalk, crossed the lawn, hit the porch and crashed into a corner of the house coming to rest partially inside the basement.

A spokesman said Bouchard saw the vehicle coming and pushed Miss Pringle out of the way. He was hurled about 40 feet over a neighbor's fence by the impact.

He was taken to hospital with multiple fractures and internal injuries.

The truck was demolished and about $8,000 damage was done to the building.

Around noon Saturday Saanich police nabbed a 32-year-old escaper from Jordan River corrections unit after a short foot chase.

Rubin Wallace, who was reported missing from the prison camp at 8:45 p.m. Aug. 2, was picked up leaving a friend's home on West Burnside.

It Takes a Man to Cook Steak Right

YEARS AGO, I WROTE A piece in a national magazine on male cookery. In the course of it, I suggested more or less casually that the cooking of a steak should be a male prerogative . . . that no woman, in fact, should be allowed within fussing distance of a steak on the fire.

That article has been reprinted several times, and each repetition subjects me to another barrage of flak from outraged female cooks.

But I see no reason to depart from my contention, which is based on woman's lamentable inability to let well enough alone.

A good steak, thick and juicy, is one of nature's fairest gifts. As such, it emphatically does not need any garnish, marinade or tenderizing.

What it does need is no-nonsense male firmness.

To cook a steak on our battered and blackened outdoor fireplace, I build my fire with finicky care. Not until I have achieved a bed of alder or fir-bark coals several inches thick do I address myself to the cooking.

Then slap goes the steak, naked except for a light dusting of garlic powder, on to the near-incandescent grill, to sizzle, sear and smoke. A quick flip to the other side and it's ready for serving, medium-rare with its rich juices sealed in the meat.

True, I've had the occasional complaint from a woman guest that she preferred her meat slightly less raw. But there speaks jealousy engendered by a fact unpalatable to the woman cook.

This is that outside her kitchen where everything is handy and there hang a host of aids, she is pathetically lost.

Nowhere is this more obvious than when a fish waits cooking:

Give a woman a salmon — let's say a plump and shiny seven-pound coho, which is about the size they're running now — and she will react to it in any one of several ways.

She will elect to stuff it and bake it.

Or poach it and serve it with icky white sauce.

Or she may wrap it in foil and steam the goodness clear out of its hearty red flesh.

A man, guided by atavistic promptings, knows better. He's aware that the only way to cook a salmon with supreme edibility in mind is to barbecue it over an open fire.

First, I catch my salmon. (My wife caught our last, but no matter!)

Then I take a sharp knife and carefully dress out two fillets, one from each shining side. I don't skin these fillets. When the salmon is browning on the fire, the skin holds the meat together.

Traditionally, salmon should be barbecued in a frame of ocean-spray saplings. But most times, I use a couple of old-fashioned, long-handled toasters into which the fillets, cut in half, are clamped.

I'm fussy about my fire. Not any old blaze will do. I like a solid base of fir-bark nuggets, with split alder laid on top for the wonderful, smokey je-ne-sais-quoi which too adds to the flavor. What's needed is an even, steady heat that will render the oil from those rich red slabs.

As the salmon begins to acquire a golden patina, I start basting it. That basting is mighty important.

For this purpose you can use sake, the rice-wine of Japan, if you wish.

For myself, I prefer a smooth blending of melted butter, lemon juice, and just a whisper of garlic. (Come to think of it, a woman gave me that cherished recipe!)

When your salmon is about the color of a good, light beer, turn it out of the toasters on to a platter. Serve with a baked potato — you can wrap that in foil if you wish — and a green salad, and you have a meal which is really too good for sinful mortal man.

All this talk of food has made me hungry. I just wandered into the kitchen to ask Win what's coming up for supper.

"Food surprise," she told me, very much the assured mistress of her kitchen. Then, kindly but firmly, she sent me about my business.

Food surprise, huh? Whatever it is, it will be delicious!

Universal Gas Co. Ltd. rose 25 cents to $10.75 a share on 1,800 shares after resuming at the opening. Aquitaine Co. of Canada Ltd., which slipped 25 cents to $18.75 a share, said it will offer $12 a share for all outstanding Universal Gas shares.

Trading halts continued in shares of Imperial General Properties Ltd. and Monarch Life Assurance Co. pending announcements from the companies.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to move lower amidst uncertainties over the dollar and the general economic outlook.

The announcement by a high official of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries that no decision has been made to meet on oil prices next month, and the planned meeting of President Carter, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Premier Menachem Begin on Mideast peace efforts were reassuring news to some analysts.

But in the day's economic news, the dollar dropped to a new low against the West German mark, an one trader said "the long-range trend seems to be a further weakening."

Servomation jumped 10⅝ to $42¼ after GDV Inc. offered $42 a share for the vending machine and restaurant company.
